AFTER THE PRIZE-FIGHT

BOTH CORBETT AND MITCHELL BEFORE THE COURT TO-DAY.

Their Cases Continued-What They Say About the Contest-Mitchell Will Never Fight Again-Notes at Jacksonville.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., January 26.—The city is desolate this morning. The glory and the excitement of the last week has faded away, and to add to the depression a eavy log and cold wave for this latitude ias put in its appearance. The militia have has put in its appearance. The militia have all gone home, the majority of the sporting men also, and the balance of them are leaving as fast as possible. Corbett and his party will endeavor to leave to-day, as the champion is billed to appear to-morrow night at Madison Square Garden, in New York. Mitchell, who has become very fond of St. Angustine will go back there, and with his Mitchell, who has become very fond of St. Augustine, will go back there, and with his wife, will spend several weeks in resting and enjoying himself. The English pugilist was bright and chipper early this morning, and seemed none the worse for his defeat of yesterday. He speaks of it now in the same manly way in which he took it yesterday. "He was just too much for me," he said, with a laugh, "and I never had a chance. I would not be afraid to try it again, but the result would not be any different. I could fight him a dozen times, and might possibly get one out of the tweive, but I would not tip that to my friends as a sure thing."

but I would not tip that to my irienus as a sure thing."

The entire Mitchell party, in fact, took the defeat in a manner that has won friends for them all. Yesterday Billy Thompson, Mitchell's manager, received from a friend, a wholesale liquor-dealer in Louisville, Ky., an express package containing a bottle of brandy and a letter of good wishes for the Englishman, ending with the following paragraph:

This brandy is one hundred years old. Take it with you into Mitchell's corner, use it, and victory will perch upon the banner of the

. THE MEN IN COURT. The cases of Mitchell and Corbett were continued this morning until February 28 in bonds of $5,000 each. They agree to apbear in court here on that day. Although the hearing was set for 10 o'clock, the crowd began to gather around the doorway leading us to Judge Phillips's court-room at 8:30 o'clock. There were fully three hundred men there when Corbett and Brady arrived at 9:45 a. m. The usual sheers greeted the champion as he stepped from his carriage and ran up the stairs. He went into a little jury-room off the court-room for a few minutes, and in the meanwhile Mitchell walked in, attended by his bondsmen, and took a seat on a bench near the judge. The defeated pugilist was bright and cheerful, although he said he was not feeling very well. He complained of rheumatism is his right shoulder, and drew his heavy ulster close to keep out the damp, cold aff that blew in from the open door. There was a red mark across the bridge of his nose, and a large, pear-shaped bruise on his left cheek bone, a smaller mark of the same nature being on his forehead. Corbett showed not a sign of the battle, and was as blithe as a lark, although very anxious to get away from the court-room, in order to start for New York.

The proceedings opened with a wrangle between the attorneys over the disappearance of the legal papers containing the information against the pugilists. It was finally agreed that the case against the principals should be tried, and those members of the Duval Club and seconds and others as accessories, brought into court-only in case Mitchell and Corbett are proven guilty. The tangles having been straightened out, Corbett's bond was drawn up and signed by Charles L. Bucks, of New York, and Thomas Casheir, of Jacksowille. BADE EACH OTHER GOOD-BY. As soon as Corbett's bond had been ac cepted, a motion was made for his release. cepted, a motion was made for his release. Judge Phillips granted it and the champion, hastily grabbing his overcoat and hat, started from the room. On the way out he crossed to where Mitchell was seated, and reaching out his hand, said with a pleasant smile: "Well, good-by, Charley."

"Good-by, Jim," said Mitchell cordially, as he grasped Corbett's hand.

"I'll see you again, old man," remarked Corbett.

'Sure thing," was the reply, and they Brady followed Corbett, shook hands with Mitchell and hurried after his friends. by the stelly twenty minutes after the departure of Corbett before Mitchell left, and walked slowly back to his hotel. "Do you know what I think about Jacksonville?" he said. "I think it is a mighty good place to go through, and that's what I am going to do I'm going to get out of here and go to do. I'm going to get out of here and go to New York as soon as I can this afternoon."

MITCHELL IS DONE FIGHTING. A few friends gathered around the de room yesterday afternoon, and to them he talked freely of the battle. "It is all over now, and it can't be helped," he said. "I only wish I had been a little longer. I shall never fight again. I have no complaints to make, and I am a great deal like the old saying, 'I'd been all right, except for the other dog.' I bear no hard feeling, and I can say that America has reason to be proud of the greatest fighter that ever stood in a ring. I don't care who goes against him, if he keeps his health he will never be beaten. I am satisfied that he can defeat me at any time."

"How are you feeling, Charley?" asked a friend anxiously.

"I am in just as good shape at this moment as when I went into the ring," replied Mitchell. "I don't know how or when I got the punch that dazed me, but after it I did not know what I was doing."

"How much do you weigh now," was room yesterday afternoon, and to them he asked.

"I weighed just 155 pounds," replied the Englishman, "before I went into the ring. Of course I am a little heavier now."

All the fighting men here agree that Mitchell was so far outclassed that he had no show to win. Billy Delaney said: "Any one who hits an old man or assaults a woman can not win a fight with a man."

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., January 26.—
Champion Corbett and his party left for New York at 11:20 this morning in a special train over the Florida Central & Peninsular road. A great crowd had assembled to see him off and the train pulled out amid deafening shouts the chympion standing on the rear off and the train pulled out amid deatening shouts, the champion standing on the rear platform, bowing his thanks to his friends. Before Corbett left he expressed $18,000 to a Boston bank to be placed to his order. The remaining $2,000 he had changed into one-hundred-dollar bills, which he presented to his trainers, seconds and friends.

CORBETT EXPLAINS IT.

He Says He Changed His Style of Fight-ing in the Ring.

New York, January 26.—Corbett wires the following brief account of how he met and whipped Mitchell: tor of the World:

You have asked me to tell your readers how I whipped Charles Mitchell in the arena of the Duval Athletic Club to-day. I will attempt to do so as briefly asposible.

The fight to-day was different from my other fights, in that my whole plan or battle was completely altered during the fight, something which has never occurred to me before. I had fully made up my mind to make the Mitchell fight a long one.

A sid this for many reasons. Among others, ormation that Corbett hit Mitchell with a

I was so confident of ultimate victory that I did not wish to ecopardize anything by rashness. In a long fight I knew that I had nothing to fear. When I got into the ring, however, and saw Mitchell, I felt for a moment so sore and mad—it was the first time we had met since the trouble at Miner's Theater—that for a time I forgot utterly my previous resolution. I managed, with a strong effort, to restrain myself somewhat during the first round.

In that round, while the fighting was sharp, I was not hurt much, while I think Mitchell's final knock-out was hastened by blows that he received then. At the end of the first round I was even more confident, if possible, than when I went into the ring that I would be the winner. Mitchell had done his worst, and I did not think it possible for him to continue at the rate he was going. In addition, his blows were not think it possible for him to continue at the rate he was going. In addition, his blows were not dangerous.

In the second round I got in one good blow on him, and from the look on his face I knew that he was badly hurt. Then I determined to finish him quick. The feeling came on me in a moment, and before I could reason it out I was hammering away desperately—doing what I had never attempted to do in say of my previous fights—to knock my man out in a hurry. When Mitchell fell in the second round, and I started toward him, there were cries of "Foul, foul."

Those who uttered the cries were not familiar with the rules governing the kind of battle we fought. When a man is down on his hands and knees it is a foul if you hit him. As soon, however, as both knees and hands are clear of the ground it is perfectly proper to strike. You must get back ten feet, however, and you are then as much at liberty to strike as it the man were up with his arms in sparring attitude.

Mitchell was half dazed and very groggy.

and you are then as much at liberty to strike as if the man were up with his arms in sparring attitude.

Mitchell was half dazed and very groggy, and it would have been very foolish of me to have given him an opportunity to recuperate. I only speak of my rights, however. In reality I did not hit Mitchell. I did not even touch him. There was so much conjusion, so much yelling and cheering, and I was so quickly hustled away by my seconds that I did not have an opportunity to follow out my original plan. As it resulted it is probably just as well that I did not, for it might have led to a long controversy.

The only foul that was committed was when Mitchell came over to my corner and rapped me over the back of the head before I knew what happened. After the second round I knew Mitchell was gone. In the third round he was almost helpless.

In concusion, I will say that Mitchell met me after the fight and spoke in a manly, straightforward way. I bear him no malice for anything that may have occurred before we met here, and wish him only prosperity for the future. In his battle to-day he was a game and honest fighter.

MRS. MITCHELL HEARS THE NEWS.

She Cried a Little, But Did Not Make Much of a Demonstration. NEW YORK, January 26 .- There was an anxious, eager party in the Herald Building yesterday afternoon while the battle was in progress in the arena at Jacksonville. It comprised Mrs. Mitchell, the pretty wife of the defeated pugilist; Mrs. B. W. Moore, Miss Bessie Bonehill, the music hall artist, and Mrs. Tony Pastor.

Near by, in the room in which they were seated, was an expert telegrapher, pen in hand, taking down the result of the contest as it was ticked off in the far-away Penin-face of every one present, only Mrs. Mitch-ell appeared more self-contained than the others. Then came the "Morse" like this: Corbett led off and landed on Mitchell's enin.

This caused a twitching of eyelids, and Mrs. Mitchell was heard to say: "My heart is jumping up and down." After this until the end there was scarcely a moment that the instrument did not click the news. When the operator had written near the foot of the paper "Corbett wins," the ladies sighed: Mrs. Mitchell brushed away, a tear, and then tried to smile. It was an unsuccessful attempt. In answer to a ques-tion she said:
"Oh, I feel all right. Both men couldn't win, and I more than half-expected how it More about the contest followed, when the operator wrote: "Mitchell knocked out; time, nine minutes," Mrs. Mitchell brushed away another tear and soon after left the building.

Mrs. Corbett 'Is Pleased.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., January 26.-Mrs. Corbett received the news of the battle in the parlor of the swell St. James Hotel. She had for her companions Mrs. Delaney, wife of Corbett's trainer, and Miss Blanche Howard, a member of Corbett's theatrical company. As fast as these messenger boys brought in the result, the message was sent to Mrs. Corbett and her companions in the parlor. When the third round came announcing Corbett's victory the three ladies indulged in a lot of hand-shaking and con-gratulatory kissing, and they gave the big American a rousing welcome when he drove Putting Up Money For Jackson. CHICAGO, January 26.—It was the general belief among the Corbett enthusiasts about town that Peter Jackson would never fulfill his contract to meet Corbett. The ease with which Corbett disposed of the Englishman was accepted as sufficient warning for the big negro, even though he did once hold Jim off for sixty rounds. The news apparently did not aftect Parson Davies who looks after Jackson as he sent Davies, who looks after Jackson, as he sent last evening the second $1,000 to Will Davis, of the Columbia Theater, to further bind the agreement. Corbett received the purse last evening. He was paid the $20,000 in eash on the stage at the Zoological Garden. It was given to him by John Kelly, the referee.

The Tariff Debate To-Day-A Caucus on the Income Tax - Indianapolis Public Building-Other News From Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 26.-That

themselves bound by the action of last night's caucus was evident as soon as the ournal was read this morning, when Mr. Cockran continued the filibustering movement begun yesterday by making a point of o quorum. This compelled a roll-call, but before it was completed Mr. Cockran changed his mind and withdrew the point. During the call of the committee for reports, Mr. Bailey reported back favorably from the judiciary committee his resolution, expressing it as the sense of the committee that the Secretary of the Treasury had no authority, under the resumption act, to use the proceeds of the sale of bonds to pay the current expenses of the Government. The consideration of the tariff bill was then resumed, the pending amendment being to fix October 1 as the date on which doll and toy schedule should go into et. Mr. Lockwood (Democrat) of New York offered an amendment to this amendment to increase the duty from 25 to 35 per cent. ad valorem. Mr. Lockwood's amend-ment was lost, and the Wilson amendment ment was lost, and the Wilson amendment was agreed to. Mr. Wilson then offered an amendment to reduce the duty on precious stones, not set from 15 to 10 per cent. ad valorem. He explained that this was to correct a misprint in the bill. Mr. Paine denied that this was a misprint. He wanted to know if this change was not in the bills are to show dispendent to the recent of the re wanted to know it this change was not in the interest of cheap diamonds for the poor people of the land. Mr. Cannon (Illinois) jokingly said that he desired to call the attention of his colleague (Mr. Hunter) to the fact that if this amendment carried, his (Mr. Hunter's) speech of thirty years' standing would be destroyed. Mr. Holman (Democrat) of Indian moved as an avend. (Democrat) of Indiana moved, as an amendment to the amendment, to increase the duty on precious stones to 30 per cent. He said that diamonds, statuary and paintings were peculiarly articles of luxury, and ought to have a heavy, instead of light, tax.

CANNON AND HUNTER AT IT. Mr. Hunter (Democrat) of Illinois at this uncture got the floor and made a bitter reply to Mr. Cannon's remarks of a few minutes before, which he concluded by saying that in this House he never had been and never would be guilty of the vul-garity and indecency which had for two years driven the gentleman into political exile. Hisses and jeers, from the Republican side, greeted this reference to the incident, and in a moment Mr. Cannon was on his feet, a burning flush upon his cheek. He had been in Congress for twenty years, he said; his colleague was serving his first term. His reference to that gentleman's speech had been entirely goodnatured. For twenty five years upon the hustings he had heard his colleague wrap his coat around him (as he said Mr. Cannon in imitation of Mr. Hunter, drew himself up in mock solemnity and began by saying he stood for the com and began by saying he stood for the common people, whose clothes were taxed 80 per cent., whose shelter was taxed 50 per cent. while the diamonds of the rich were taxed only 10 per cent. With that text for twenty-five years he had stumped Illinois, and had concluded each speech with a glowing peroration by saying that "not all the blood of the crucified Christ on Calvary could wipe out such infamy." [Laughter.] "And now," continued Mr. Cannon, "the gentleman comes here and drags in a reference to a remark I here and drags in a reference to a remark I made in the Fifty-first Congress in the hurry of running debate—a remark that, was misrepresented all over the country. He does this with the true instinct of an unfair debater. I will not characterize this subter-fuge of a weak man." [Prolonged Repub-

CUMMINGS DENOUNCES COCKRAN. Mr. Hunter withdrew his offending remarks and Representative Amos Cummings (Democrat) of New York made a very sensational speech, denouncing his colleague, Representative Bourke Cockran, for his position on the aiamond schedule, and alleging that the latter was acting in the interest of diamond importers, after having promised to stand by the diamond-cutters.

THE DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS.

A Decision on the Income Tax Bill-Mr. Cockran "Ricks." WASHINGTON, D. C., January 26 .- Only e amendment of importance to the tariff bill was adopted by the House yesterday, that repealing the reciprocity clause of the McKinley law. The entire day was con-sumed by the New York Democrats, who were filibustering against the income tax proposition, which they feared would be offered, along with other features of the internal revenue bill, as an amendment to the Wilson bill. Several Democratic speeches, severely criticising the bill, were delivered. The Democratic advocates of the income tax became so impatient late in the afternoon over the course pursued by the New York members that they concluded that the best way to settle the question would be by holding a caucus. This Mr. Wilson finally agreed to, and on his motion the House took a recess, and the fight was transferred from the open House to a secret

At the caucus a resolution was carried that the internal revenue bill and the in-come tax be added as an amendment to the Wilson bill. The time for debate on the tariff bill was extended three days to give time for discussion of the income tax. Under this arrangement the final vote will be taken Thursday next. Mr. Wilson's amendment that the tariff debate be closed and a vote that the tariff debate be closed and a vote taken before the income tax bill was taken up, was defeated by a vote of 68 to 92. Mr. Fithian's resolution, which provided for voting on the two bills together, was adopted—89 to 71. Bourke, Cockran and other New York Democrats declared that they did not consider themselves bound by the action of the caucus.

For the first time the claim is being positively made by the leading members of the House that the Wilson bill is to be recommitted, if entirely beaten. This is claimed

This is claimed to be the result of a canvass which leads New York members to estimate that there New York members to estimate that there will be fifty Democratic votes against the Wilson bill with the income tax added. The adverse votes counted are as follows: Massachusetts, 3; Rhode Island, 2; Connecticut, 5; New York, 17; New Jersey, 6; Pennsylvania, 6; Maryland, 3. These, with the scattering votes of Chicago members and others from large cities who are against the income tax, and the opposition of the iron, coal and sugar men, are estimated to make a total of fifty. The changed situation is due mainly to the plans of Republican members to vote in favor of making the income tax an amendment to the bill. On the other hand the income tax men say that their plan will strengthen the bill, and they point to the votes of the Populists and several individual members, like Sibley (Democrat) of Pennsylvania who will vote for the bill if the income tax is added.

What Bynum Thinks Of It.

[Special to the Indianapolis News.] very much afraid," said Congressman Bynum, "that the action of the Democratic caucus last night in agreeing to tack the in-come tax on the Wilson bill will result in the recommittal of the tariff bill to the ways and means committee. The Republicans are preparing to make their strong fight in favor of recommittal. They will probably be aided by nearly all the New York delegation, the New Jersey delegation, the Connecticut Democratic Congressmen, the Louisiana sugar men, and perhaps some of the opponents of free coal and free iron ore. We may be saved, however, by the Populists, who will vote with us.

"I have not favored putting the income tax proposition in the tariff bill. Both measures have been rendered weaker, I believe by being considered together. Many Republicans would support the income tax on its own merits, but will vote against it on its own merits, but will vote against i on its own merits, but will vote against it now, and justify their action by saying they could not swallow it, because it was conted with the Wilson bill. At the same time, Democrats who would have voted for the Wilson bill without the income tax, will now find sufficient excuse for opposing it."

Most of the other Democratic members of the ways and woons committee feel like Most of the other Democratic members of the ways and means committee feel like Mr. Bynum, that the Republicans have secured the opportunity they have been looking for, and they will succeed by the aid of the disgruntled Democrats in sending the bill back to the ways and means com-

MR. COOPER'S AMENDMENT.

He Secures a Change in the Wilson Bill to Benefit His Constituents. WASHINGTON, D. C., January 26.—Representative Cooper of Indiana yesterday ecured an amendment to the tariff bill, placing sumac and degnas on the free list, also reducing cod oil to 25 per cent. ad valorem. The McKinley tariff taxes cod oil 8 cents per gallon. All these preparations are used in preparing leather sumac, which the McKinley bill taxed heavily.

Cod oil is used to dress harness leather. In Mr. Cooper's town, Columbus, Ind., is the largest harness leather dressing establishment in the world. Mr. Cooper explained the Mooney tannery, which exports the product all over the world. Mooneys alone consume 100,000 gallons of cod oil annually. Mr. Cooper says the Wilson bill wil enable them to enlarge their plant and give more employment to men and export more leather and consume more raw hides of Indiana farmers, Mr. Cooper adds that in 1872 the Mooney tannery was a small affair, but within a stone's throw there was a large woolen mill. That same year hides were placed on the free list same year hides were placed on the free list and tariff was placed on wool. The woolen mill has long ago disappeared, the result of the wool tariff, and the farmers find no more a local market for wool. With free hides the tannery has grown to be the largest of its kind in the world. Before wool was taxed there were more than fitteen woolen wille in Mr. Coorde district. mills in Mr. Cooper's district. To day, with twenty years of protected wool, there is not one mill left.

INDIANAPOLIS'S PUBLIC BUILDING. Little Probability of a Bill Providing For It Passing This Session.

[Special to The Indianapolis News ] WASHINGTON, D. C., January 26 .- It is not likely that any public building bill will he passed by the present House. Chairman Bretz, of the sub-committee on public buildings and grounds, admits that this is true, although he intends to prepare a strong report in favor of the new building at Indianapolis. The committee on public buildings and grounds will undoubtedly make a favorable report on the Indianapolis building bill, and it will go on the calendar of the House, but will not be called up this esserion.

Delphi (Ind.) Lime-Workers

[Special to The Indianapolis News.] WASHINGTON, D. C., January 26 .- Congressman Dingley of Maine, in his remarks on the duty on lime in the House a few days ago, claimed that the average wages paid to the employes at Rockwell, the center of the lime industry in his district, was $2.50 a day, while the Canadian employes receive but $1 a day. A gentleman who is acquainted with the lime industry in this country says that the average daily wages is much less than $2.50 a day. Con-gressman Hammond has been informed by a gentleman at Delphi, Ind., that the lime-works at that place employ about three hundred laborers at $1 a cay. These employes work twelve hours, and receive their wages, for the most part, in orders on local merchants, who are alleged to be stockhold ers in the Delphi lime-works.

Congressman Sibley Resigns. WASHINGTON, D. C., January 26.-Mr. Sibley, the Democratic Congressman from Pennsylvania, has resigned his seat in Conrennsylvania, has resigned his seat in Congress, to take effect February 17. Criticism of his course on the tariff bill is said to be the cause. Mr. Sibley says he reached his determination, to resign only Wednesday night, and forwarded his letter of resignation to the Governor of the State yesterday, but that his action was foreshadowed in a letter some days ago. He says his present determination is final and irrevocable.

The Rope Broke the First Time Painter Makes a Speech, Saying He Hates Death and That He Is Innocent - His Crime.

CHICAGO, January 26.—George H. Painter was hanged at 8:04 o'clock this morning for the murder of Alice G. Martin. It was a bungling execution. The rope broke the first attempt. The victim picked the blunder was limp, another rope was secured and he was hanged a second time. The first rope used was the same that was used in hanging the anarchists. The scene was a trying one to the people who were present to witness the vindication of the law, The jail physician said the second hanging was unnecessary, as Painter's neck was broken when he first dropped.

Painter smoked a cigar on his way to the scaffold, and tried to retain his composure. After prayer by the Rev. Mr. Moerdyke, Painter stepped forward, and in a faltering voice said: Men have sought death because they thought there was advancement in future life. To-day I hate death. I don't want to die. If I killed Alice Martin, the woman I dearly loved, I pray this minute, my last minute on earth, that the Eternal God will put me into eternal hell. Gentlemen, if there is a man among you who is an American in his soul, I say to him see that the murderer of Alice Martin is found. Good-by.

found. Good-by.

Fainter's crime was the murder of his mistress, Alice Martin, at their rooms on South Green street, near Madison. During his confinement Painter, who was a Chicago gambler, professed to be a firm believer in hypnotism, and pleaded for an opportunity to demonstrate his innocence by being thrown into a hypnotic trance. He would be compelled, he said, while under the influence of the hypnotist to repeat his actions on the night of the murder, but his request was refused. Painter was twice reprieved, affidavits being secured tending to fix the crime on Dick Edwards, a desperado bearing some resemblance to Painter and now under sentence in Texas for murdering other women. After patient investigation, however, Governor Altgeld decided last night that the affidavits were worthless.

Confessed a Murder.

INDIANA, Pa., January 26,-Glen Campell, Burnside Mehalley, and other mining communities north of Indiana, are enjoying another sensation. A religious revival is in progress at Glen Campbell and mourners are plenty. One of the attendants, under excitement, confessed that he and a companion had murdered a peddler three years ago, concealed his body, and divided the spoils, one taking the ready money and the other the murdered man's pack. Vasbinder, who made the confession, told where the body was buried, and people are searching for it.

Its Power Successfully Utilized in Three Great Water Wheels.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. J., January 26 .- The first test of the great tunnel power at Niagara Falls was made yesterday, and water from the river was let down on three big turbine wheels and out again through the monster tunnel. The turbines are of the inverted order, made by R. D. Wood & Co., of Philadelphia, from original designs and patterns by E. Geylin. There are operating under 165 feet head, probably the greatest head in the country. of these wheels were made yesterday and of these where were made yesterday and proved most satisfactory to the makers, the designer and the paper company. The penstocks were filled up with water and the pressure was gradually iet on the wheels, which moved slowly and perfectly, at first, without jar or friction. without jar or friction. Gradually the full force of the water was permitted to play upon the buckets of the wheels, and they whirled with rapidity and precision.

The development of Niagara power marks a step forward in hydraulies and opens up a new era in power generation. This is the first production of water power in this city from this manner of development by inverted turbine. The next will see the transmission of electricity from the monster turbines and dynamos of the Cataract Construction Company. struction Company.

Murdered For His Money

CRESTON, Ia., January 26 .- R. G. Goodale, farmer, seventy-two years old, residing alone in a little house near Afton, has been found butchered in his house. By the failure of a bank at Tingley he lost $400, and has since kept considerable sums in his house. There were sixteen wounds on Goodale's head and neck, any one of which would have caused death. The old man had apparently been knocked senseless at first, and the subsequent blows and stabs were given to insure his death.

GIRL WIFE DESERTED.

With Her Baby in Her Arms She Asks Help of the Police.

Dominic Andnelle, a tailor, employed by Kahn, and Marie, the fourteen-year-old daughter of Frank Ditrane, au Italian fruit-seller at 227 East Washington street, were married two years ago. The marriage was against the wishes of the girl's parents, This morning the girl wife, with eyes red from weeping, carrying in her arms a tenmonths baby, was at the police station. She said her husband had deserted her, and she had come to ascertain if the police could find him for her. The officers crowded around her, and Sergeant Dawson picked up the baby that re-warded him with a laugh and reached its hands toward his face.

"The man who would desert a baby like

The man who would desert a baby like this is a durned mean cuss," said the Sergeant, with huskiness in his voice. Superintendent Powell turned and walked to the window, and the policemen shifted about uneasily. Police Matron Buchanan was called and took charge of the mother and child. The story told by the deserted wife was pathetic. The woman said that her husband had always treated her well, but left yesterday without kissing her or the baby good-bye. He had taken all his clothing and had left her penniless and without a thing to eat. She had been told that he had gone to California. Matron Buchanan took an interest in the matter at once, and, with Mrs. Andnelle, visited all ticket offices. The matron believes that the man has gone to Boston. A visit was made to the woman's parents, but they refused to do anything for her, saying they were not able to support her and the child. Mrs. Andnelle has a room at 306½ Fast Washington street. Her rent and gas bills are paid up to February 12. MACHINE POLITICIANS WORK-ING HARD AGAINST IT.

Delegations to Consult the Mayor Entertained By Mr. Holloway-Ward Meetings Adopt Resolutions Against the New Code.

The machine politicians are making efforts to prevent the adoption of civilservice rules by the city. It is the one subject of talk in the basement of the courthouse, and nearly every employe is talking against civil service. The "statesmen" are busy, and when Mayor Denny returns he will have a of delegations to meet ber of delegations to meet and pacify. In the meantime the politicians are making it merry for W. R. Holloway, the mayor's secretary. They all tell their troubles to him, and he has not had time to do anything but breathe since the agitation began. It has been suggested in the city offices that the Board of Public Works build a swearing room (not accessible to the police) next to the mayor's office for the benefit of those who need it. Ex-Counciman Gasper dropped in to see the mayor. Thus to Mr. Holloway:

Eleven of the sixteen Republican members of Council met in the city clerk's office to canvass on the proposed civil service rules. The greater number present were either candidates for something or expect to be some time. Those in attendance were Rauh, Cooper, Kraass, Allen, Shaffer, Stott, Murphy, Puryear, Kaiser, Drew and Young. The majority agreed that they were opposed to the code and would tell Mayor Denny so. They also said that they intended to make an effort to prevent the rules from being adopted.

It became known yesterday that the appointment of "Tom" Tallentire as superintendent of construction at Garfield Park was not due to Controller Trusler, as was generally supposed. ### DIPHTHERIA AND THE SCHOOLS. Fifty-Five Cases in the City-School No. 27 Still Closed.

Public school No. 27 will probably remain closed for some time longer. It has been closed three weeks. It was closed by the Board of Health, as it was reported that the children of the janitor were down with diphtheria. These children have recovered and it was thought that the school might be opened, but diphtheria broke out in a family two doors from the school. At the last meeting of the Board of Health it was decided to keep the school closed until the next meeting of the board.

Superintendent Jones, of the public schools, says that he knows of few cases of diphtheria, and thinks that school 27 could with safety be reopened. He says that diphtheria has not been so prevalent this vear as in former years, and that the cases that have developed have been well taken eare of and promptly quarantined.

From the Board of Health it was learned that there are now nity-five diphtheria cards posted in the city. Eleven cases were reported last week and eight the week before. A few weeks ago cases were reported at the rate of lorty and fifty a week. Only one of the pupils of school 27 is suffering from diphtheria, and Superintendent Jones says none of the other schools has pupils suffering from the disease.

HOTEL RATES FOR CANDIDATES.

They Are Thought To Re Excessive · A Committee Appointed.

All the candidates who attended the meeting of the Republican State committee met yesterday afternoon in one of the parlors of the Denison Hotel to consider the prices which the hotel had proposed to charge which the hotel had proposed to charge them for rooms during the State convention. It was reported to the meeting that the hotel proposed to charge each candidate, who opened headquarters, from $150$ to $200$ for the use of a room two or three days. It was the sentiment of the meeting that the charge was excessive, and a committee, composed of William L. Taylor, candidate for Attorney General; George Harvey, candidate for Clerk of the Supreme Court; R. A. Brown, candidate for Clerk of the Supreme Court; John W. Coons, candidate for Auditor, and William R. McClellan, candidate for Clerk of the Supreme Court, was appointed to Supreme Court, was appointed to wait on the hotel manager and insist that the proposed rates be reduced at least one-half. The committee was also instructed that, in the event the hotel would not fix a better rate, there should be a conference with the chairman of the State committee with the view of fixing upon another hotel as headquarters for Republicans during the convention.

WILL MAKE IMPROVEMENTS

DETERMINED STAND OF THE BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS.

"Will Do Its Duty Regardless of Clamor"-Brisk Interviews at the Board Meeting-Improvements -McGettigan's Back Pay.

The Board of Public Works had a surprise for the various delegations that came in this morning to remonstrate against public improvements. President Wildman said in plain terms that the board did not propose to allow the march of improvements to be stopped; the people demanded them, the city needed them and so far as the board was concerned it proposed to do its duty, regardless of clamor.

"We do not propose to trample on any one's rights," said he; "we propose to order improvements that will benefit the property. We can not listen to every trifling argument-there would be no improvements if we did."

I am not against street improvements, said W. H. H. Miller, who was present at the head of a committee remonstrating against the improvement of West Washington street, "but we do not want improvements made that will confiscate the property." 'And that the board does not propose to

"What kind of a pavement are you going to put down in West Washington street?" "Brick, and the very best kind of brick The property over there won't stand

"I think a grayel street is good enough."
"Well, I can say to you that this board will not put down any corduroy road on the principal street in Indianapolis and the most prominent thoroughfare in the State. It will be the right kind of an improve-

"I gress all the rights we can get here will be in the courts," exclaimed Mr. Miller. "You shall have your rights. When the board takes up that matter, your remonstrance will be considered. Until that time there is nothing to say or do about it. Who is next here? We have a number of mattera to talk about to-day."

"I guess I'm next," said William Traub.

"I want to say that the property owners in West Washington street —"That matter is not before the board now, Traub. If that's what you want to about, there is no use wasting any more

"Hold on. Say, I want Vermont street improved. The Big Four has some ground on that street and I want to see if they will oppose it. Now I—"
"Have you a petition."
"Yes, here it is. It is signed—"
"Never mind reading it. We will do that. It that's all, just step aside and give some one else a chance. No use in taking in time."

"That's right," exclaimed Traub, backing

W. P. Fishback was there with a committee to oppose the asphalting of Alabama street, and ask for cedar block. President Wildman said it looked to him as if an attempt was made to keep down any improvement for Alabama street.

The committee filed out and the board ordered asphalt in Alabama street from Maryland street to Massachusetts avenue. Also gravel for Vermont street, from the river bridge to Belmont avenue. It also took final action on the papers for the Mississip of street sewer, from Pogue's Run to Georgia street.

THE FREE DRAWING SCHOOL. Three Evenings in the Week Devoted

Not long ago a highly successful builder word "quadrilateral," which had occurred in some specifications he had been reading. As I had been interested for many years in the education of young men, this involun tary confession of insufficient knowledge on the part of this builder impressed me ing of the second term of the Free Evening Drawing School appeared in THE NEWS a few days later, I visited that school to learn

The school was founded ten years ago by the Germans of our city for the purpose of giving instruction in arithmetic and draw-ing, to apprentices and others whose em-ployment denied them the privileges of the day schools. Although its life was a con-tinual struggle for existence, there were those who held to it with true German faiclity and perseverance until it was finally placed in the care of the school board. Since that time even, its right to existence has been severely criticised by the committee in charge, but, fortunately, it has not been discontinued. Now, it is part of the Manual Training School, and, with that institution, is undergoing the change which will make the severes of the second of the sec tion, is undergoing the change which will make it a power for good in our city.

The sessions are held in the third floor of the building at 120 East Maryland street, from 7:30 to 0 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Here, on the evening of my visit, were gathered some seventy-five of as earnest young men as one could wish to see. In one class the rupils were making sketches from groups of models; in another they were at the blackboard, demonstrating problems in geometry, and in the ing sketches from groups of models; in another they were at the blackboard, demonstrating problems in geometry, and in the hind were making drawings preliminary to their work in clay modeling.

The course of study is briefly, as follows: The whole of the first year is devoted to tree-hand drawing, in which sketching and shading from objects takes the principal part. This, with the simple geometry that is tought, prepares the pupil for a quicker, and better understanding of the modeling and mechanical drawing. In the second year the modeling in clay and mechanical drawing are begun. In the third year no course is as f. offered in modeling but those who have complexed the first year of mechanical drawing take up machine and architectural drawing in detad. This course will be enlarged as the resources and facilities are extended. While no one under fifteen year is admitted to the school, a cordial invitation is extended to all over that age. The work of the last half year, which was shown to me, is excellent.

H. Lindenberg, sculptor, is the instructor in charge of the modeling and its accompanying drawing. Professor Lindenberg graduated from the Academy of Art, Berlin. In 1858, and from the Academy of Fine Arts, Paris, in 1852. He was for many years the director of the celebrated Von Ludwig's Art Institute in Vienna, where his ability was rewarded by a prize medal, from the World's Exposition held in that city in 1873. His work is to be found in London, Paris, Berlin, New York, Boston his ability was rewarded by a prize medal, from the World's Exposition held in that city in 1873. His work is to be found in London, Paris, Berlin, New York, Boston and Chleage and in this city. All of the sculpture on the Commercial Club Building is his. His long experience both in the teaching and practice of his art renders the privilege of belonging to his classes a golden one, indeed.

Mr. T. R. Bell, the instructor in mechanical drawing and machine design, is a consulting mechanical engineer of long experience. He is a graduate of the Mechanics and Arts Institute, Belfast, Ireland, and has been employed as designer by the Hinckley locomotive-works, the Missouri Pacific railroad, the Dean Brôs', steam-pumpworks of this city, and others.

The first year pupils report to Mr. Chester P. Wilson in free-hand drawing. Mr. Wilson is an electrical engineer and a graduate of the Indianapolis schools and of Cornell University. He has seen responsible service with the Citizens' Street Railroad Company, and is at present in charge of the department of drawing in the Manual Training School.

A faculty of such excellence is rarely found in an evening school, and the School Board deserves the earnest support of every skilled workman and employer in the city for having provided this institution, where all interested may get that inspira-tion and positive good which is the secret of all success. M. R. W.

THE PENSION AGENCY. Auxious Democrats Recoming Dis couraged at the Situation.

The local Democrats, who watch the newspapers from day to day for the annonnement that a pension agent has been appointed for the district of Indiana, are becoming discouraged. They did not be lieve Mr. Ensley would be permitted to serve out his term, and when the term did expire they were confident that the appointment of a Democrat would announced on the following day. They have watched the newspapers auxiously every day this week for the name of the new agent. Some of them have about come to the conclusion that perhaps President Cleveland intends to treat Mr. Ensley with as much consideration as was shown Mr. Zollinger by President Harrison. shown Mr. Zollinger by President Harrison. Mr. Zollinger was allowed to fill the office three months after his term had expired. Some of the disappointed Democrats were also informed to-day that President Harrison allowed the pension agent at Buffalo, Mr. Cleveland's home, to ngent at Buffulo, Mr. Cleveland's home, to serve for one year and three months after the expiration of his term of four years. Several Indianapolis Democrats have waited for positions in the pension office for more than a year, and they say their patience is almost exhausted.

The arrangements for the quarterly payment next month have been about completed by Mr. Ensley.

TOMLINSON HALL DIRT.

It Shocks the Custodian of the State House.

The custodian of the State House and his orce of janitors were at Tomlinson Hall resterday decorating it for the Gray Club bail. The custodian says the keeper of the city building makes a mistake in dischargjanitors; that there is enough dust and dirt in the city hall to keep a force of men at work for a month There is dust to the depth of a quarter of an inch in the garret that has been allowed to accumulate since the structure was built. He recommend that the windows be relieved of their dirt so the sunlight may get into the building. The State House custodian says the janitors at the City Hall need instructions on how to mop a floor. At present, he says, the floors look as if one bucket of water had been used to wash all of them. The result is the mops have made streaks along the floors and dampened the dirt instead of removing it. The castedian grawled into the garret of the city hall in search of a plank. He came out without it, and was so covered with colwebs and dust that he could hardly be recognized. He recommends a thorough beginning in the garret of the working down, instead of in the basement and going up.

THE SCALES OF JUSTICE.

LITIGATION PENDING AND CASES DECIDED IN VARIOUS COURTS.

Effect of the Supreme Court's Fee and Salary Decision-Bank Case Trial Expected First Week in April -Other Court News.

The decision of the Supreme Court yes terday on the validity of the fee and salary law, the State officers say, will prevent much litigation. Had the law been held unconstitutional, many suits by county officials would have been instituted to recover payments made under the new law. Many county officials have been slow in making settlements with the counties, pending the Supreme Court decision. Those who made payments did so on condition that the money could be recovered without litigation. In nearly every county the salaries and fees are yet large enough to make the offices worth the getting. The sherills of the State have complained that they are oppressed by the law. Several sheriffs who pressed by the law. Several sheriffs who have been at the State House within the last few months urging the overthrow of the law, predicted wholesale resignations i the law was upheld by the court. This is not expected by the State officers. In all the counties preparations are making to nominate officers for the election next fall.

There seems to be no decrease in the number of candidates who aspire to public po-

There are now in Marion county two officersacting under the fee and salary law—the sheriff and the treasurer. Sheriff Emmett says that he can make no money out of his office, but the law is conceded to be a office, but the law is conceded to be a benefit to the treasurer. Many supposed the recorder's office was administered under the new law, but such is not the fact. Recorder Donnelly has conducted it under the old law since he assumed it, and will continue so until the term for which he was appointed expires. The administration of the office under the old law is defended with the statement as made by Mr. Donnelly's friends that the fee-and-salary law makes no provisions for a successor in case of a vacancy. In the absence of such a provision in the general law on the succession in case of vacancy, they hold, applies to Mr. Donnelly's case.

This is Section 5,566 of the statutes, which provides that a successor, in case of va-cancy, shall give the same bond, perform the same duties and have the same rights privileges as his predecessor. It is further asserted that Mr. Donnelly is serving without compensation, the profits of the office going to the widow of Recorder

THE BANK CASES.

No Time Set For Trial-First Week In April the Time Probable.

No action has yet been taken in reference o the indictment against Robert B. F. It was expected that Mr. Peirce would be required to plead to the indict ment this week, but on account of the sickness of Judge Baker the matter was not brought up by the district attorney. The cases against the men who have pleaded in bank litigation have not been set for but it seems to be understood that trial, but it seems to be understood that the first case on the docket—that against Theodore P. Haughey—will be called during the first week in April. The attorneys in the cases believe that the last of the cases will not be tried before late in the

Why McGee Was Relessed Robert McGee, of 126 Meek street, was fined this morning for drunkenness, but when Judge Stubbs heard his story he released him. McGee said he was a conductor on the Big Four and was discharged because he had remained at the World's Fair longer than his leave of absence allowed. He has a wife and three children, and has not been able to find work to support them. He grew despondent and reckies, and yes-terday took a drink of whisky; after that he knew nothing. McGee promised the Judge that he would not be so feelish as to drink again.

An Oak Hill Cow Case. cow is practically on trial in Judge longed to Obadiah Baker, who lives in Oak Hill. Peter M. Dohl, the plaintiff, asks$100 damages because of the acts of said cow. Judge Brown is having pictures drawn by counsel on both sides in their arguments of the cow. On one side the pictures represent her peacefully chewing her cud, while in the other she is raging back and forth, razing fences and trampling the young trees and shrubs under foot. Oak Hill is well represented among the spectators.

Walker Loses His Case. The suit of Douglas E. Walker against ex-Superintendent Colbert, Chief Splan and detectives Doherty and Kinney was given to the jury this morning. The jury was out about twenty minutes and returned a ver-dict for the officers. Walker had been arrested on telegraphic information from Columbus, O., and sued for damages for false imprisonment.

BRIGHTWOOD BREVITIES

The special meetings at the Brightwood M. E. church were discontinued last night until next week. They have so far resulted in a large number of conversions. There was the usual number of frozen-up-lecomotives in the Brightwood shops yes-terday and the day before while the ther-

Brightwood had plenty of gas during the cold snap. A twelve-inch pipe from the Noblesville wells runs through this suburb and while there is gas the town will have it unless the company decides otherwise.

The situation between the County Board of Health and the Brightwood Board of Health remains about the same. The county board awaits the returns from the local board, and the latter awaits supplies from the county board that it may make its Brightwood. He got a magic lantern from Santa Claus at Christmas, but the novelty of the toy had worn away sufficiently to create in him a desire to trade it for a recreate in him a desire to trade it for a revolver which a companion was the envied possessor of. He was permitted to have the weapon for a day to prove that it was a real revolver that shot real bullets of the well-known 22-caliber. He took it into one of the cars of the "hoodlum" (the train that conveys the shop employes to and from work), which stood in the Big Four railroad yard. While he was trying the parts, to see with what case they worked, the hammer slipped from his fincers: there was a bang; the revolver cylingers. worked, the hammer slipped from his fin-gers; there was a bang; the revelver cylin-der went erashing into the side of the car, and, when the smoke had cleared away, the bullet was found to have plowed its way down the boy's leg and lodged in the vicinity of the knee. Dr. Johnson probed for it, but did not succeed in getting it, and the boy will probably carry it for life. A strange feature of the case is the fact that after having the best evidence that the weapon was a bons fide revolver, the boy did not keep it. The former owner refused to take it back, and the one man in the suburb who knows where it is, won't tell. He believes that boys and revolvers should not play together.

* Brightwood citizens have heard nothing lately about the electric line to that suburb. The tracks have wired to the end of the line, but the work stopped there, and the people have come to the conclusion that it is expected to throw a current through these wires to urge on the heels of the mules as they wend their weary way to the far-off suburb. Two or three weeks ago the town was agog with talk of how the Big Four was going to establish three stations. Four was going to establish three stations between the city and suburb, and put en suburban trains on account of the slowness of the Citizens' company to get rapid transit to the town. Now nothing is heard, and those interested are wondering if it is the calm that precedes the storm.

The Brightwood Town Board re-engaged J. B. Kealing as town attorney, at the same salary and under similar conditions as in the past. A communication from General Manager McLean, of the street car company, acknowledged the receipt of a complain acknowledged the receipt of a complaint from the board of the condition of the road-hed between the company's tracks in the town, and promised that gravel would be put where needed. S. Espey was allowed 75 cents for eight loads of sand and $1 each for nine loads of bowlders, Marshal James R. WREAKING VENGEANCE ON SNAKES

Snakes Killed His Sweetheart, and He Has Sworn Vengeauce. Memphis Commercial N July last occurred

the slaying of Hiram Hightower's daughter, Minnie, by blind moccasin snakes on Horse Shoe lake, in St. Fran-cis county, Arkansas. cis county, Arkansas.
The victim was a pretty lass, and although not more than seventeen years old, was engaged to be married to a young cis county, Arkansas.

armer named Allison at the time of her death. Allison was so affected by his fiancee's horrible fate that his mind was temporarily unbalanced, and he was kept confined for several weeks. When the healing hand of time had soothed the first keen pangs of his grief he recovered his reason sufficiently to attend to the ordinary affairs of life, but his mind had received a blow which it is apprehended he will never entirely recover He sold his farm and stock as soon as he could, and announced his purpose to devote his life to the extermination of the venom ous reptiles that killed the woman he loved. He ensconced himself in a cabin on the shore of the lake, not far from the High tower place, and began a systematic war-fare on the snakes. How many of the rep-tiles he has killed no one knows accurately, out he has the skins of 900 moccasins, cot ton-mouth pythons and the rattles of more than a hundred rattlesnakes. He began his work of extermination about the last of August, which time swamp snakes are not so much in evidence as they are earlier in the year, having sought out quarters for the KILLED EIGHTY-SEVEN MOCCASINS. Allison made it his business and pleasure seek out these winter residences. In one den under an enormous cypress log ou a high ridge he killed eighty-seven moccasins, and near by found and destroyed a nest of sixteen rattlesnakes. With the rattlesnakes were two cotton-mouths and a copperhead Allison caught the copperhead alive with a forked stick, after he had killed all its companions, it being too indolent or too pugnacious to seek safety in flight. The eaptive is only about fifteen inches long, but it belongs to a small species, the copperhead rarely attaining a length of more than two feet. It is kept in a glass bottle Allison's intention is to snake to death. He claims that there must have been a copperhead, a rattlesnake or a cotton-mouth among the snakes that stung his sweetheart to death, as the ordinary moccasin's bite is not usually deadly.

When this lone crazed emulator of St.
Patrick first entered upon his strange and seemingly hopeless task of destroying all the snakes in and around Horse Shoc lake, he left his victims' bodies where they lay when death overtook them. His vengeful passion grew on what it fed, however, and after a few weeks of indiscriminate slaying he began to gather up and skin the snakes he killed. Befere the weather grew so cold that reptile life had practically disappeared from the face of the earth, he had enough snake skins dried to paper the bedroom of his cabin. They were rough dried and nailed with the outside exposed, the mot-tled brown and yellow of the moccasins contrasting strikingly with the gray and black of the rattlesnakes and the black backs and white bellies of the cotton-mouths. TO MAKE IT A BUSINESS. Allison is now engaged in dressing the skins he has remaining, with the purpose of forming a rug of them. His neighbors view his occupation with despair and give his lonely cabin a wide berth, but that does not seem to annoy him. Snakes destroyed all that he lived for, and he seems to have found a queer sort of happiness in carrying out his scheme of vengeance.

A trapper who knows Allison and the Hightower family was in Memphis Saturday, and, after telling the story of the young farmer's war on the snakes, said that several men higher or and near Horse. that several men living on and near Horse that several men fiving on and near florse Shoe lake were resolved to form a company and join with Allison in the snake-killing industry, not because they have any personal grievance against the snakes, but because they think that there is money in a snake-oil factory. They propose to assist Allison to kill the snakes, and as a consideration therefor they are propose to assist Alison to kill the shakes, and as a consideration therefor they are to acquire title to the bodies of the victims, which they will render into oil.

Snake oil is a high-priced limiment, much valued and generally used by athletes. The rattlesnake is supposed to yield the best quality, but the Horse Shoe lake capitalists believe that moreogia grass is equally good. elieve that moccasin grease is equally good and salable.

Open Doors to the Hen-Coop. There was cackling of hens in Washington street this afternoon. A hen-coop on a huckster's wagon opened its doors and the iowls emerged and scattered about among the vehicles and pedestrians. Small boys gave chase to the hens, and the pureuit for a time was wild and feathery. When it last fowl rave the lads a merry chase, and finally fled for refuge into a dry-goods store, whence it was plucked and nearly dismembered by three boys striving for procession.

English Opinions of the Fight LONDON, January 26.—Commenting on the glove-fight at Jacksonville yesterday, the Star says:

Now that Corbett has pricked the Mitchell bubble, we shall probably hear less about that cowardly ruffian. The only satisfactory feature of yesterday's degrading exhibition is that one blackguard was well whipped. The turn of the other will certainly come, and then he will be dropped like a hot cinder by the crewd or reques who form the body-guard of the prize-ring here and in America. Mitchell should reserve himself for old men in the future, he is more accustomed to that safer department. tepartment. The Sun says:

The soun says:

The so-called fight appears to have been a failure. Every reasonable person sympathized with the Governor of Florida, who was thwarted by the Jacksonville municipal authorities, who knew that the riotous, drunken, profane gang of scoundrels would spend money in their city. Yesterday's show ought to condemn the so-called "noble art" forever.

The St. James Gazette, also referring to the contest, says). the contest, says).

It was a most degrading, disgusting business without the brute maniliness of the old Sayers-Heenan days.

The Standard expresses the opinion that the Corbett-Mitchell glove fight was "an especially dirty sample of a dirty business."

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET. Fluctuations In Sugar Stocks—Feature of To-Day's Trading.

New York, January 26.—The stock market opened fairly active and strong, prices being up 1/46/4c, the latter on Sugar, which quickly made an additional gain of 1/4c. Missouri Pacific up 1/4c, and Louisville & Nashville 1/4c. Pacific up %c, and Louisville & Nashville %c. The opening strength did not hold, and a drive against Sugar depressed the whole market. Sugar and Missouri Pacific losing % per cent. each, and the rest of the shares traded in %@1%. The weakness was of short duration; the temper of the market soon changed for the better. The buying was induced by the bettef that the tacking on of the income tax to the Wilson bill will kill that measure, which is not drawn on lines favorable to the sugar interest.

STOCK MARKET TALK. Stocks were strong at the opening. Among the low-priced stocks Missouri Pacific showed most strength. The advance was due to favorable weather, which will be disclosed in the annual report. St. Paul was heavy, even at a fractional gain. There was stock for sale on a scale up and room traders were inclined to hammer. Burlington was in good demand to cover shorts. London bought. L. & N. trad-

One of the Vanderbilts' presidents says that the sudden spurt in east-bound shipments just before rates were advanced and the large east-bound shipments for the week ending last Saturday made officials more hopeful, but they lound the west-bound shipments continued poor, many of the cars going back empty. West-bound business is between 30 and 40 per cent. less than last year. The big freight profit is in the high-class west-bound business. Earnings for the third week of January of the L. E. & W. decreased $3,864. Louisville & Nashville earnings for the third week of January decreased $11,900; from July 1 to the latest date they decreased $2,057,000.

There is a better borrowing demand for stocks, owing to some of the bears having delayed filling requirements on to-day's settlement.

A railroad official, who attended the Trunk Line meeting yesterday, says the noticeable feature of the meeting was the effort of New York Central to promote harmony. The Central interest was so active and willing to make concessions as to excite remark and curiosity as to why so much more than the wonted interest should have been manifest.

In Tax News of Saturday, January 27, will be published the first part of Bret Hacte's last new story, "Young Robin Grey." The second and concluding part will appear a week later. This story has the fresh quality of the best of Harte's work. It is a capital love story, with plenty of incident. It is in a new field for Bret Harte. It is a Scottish story. It is to be awaited with great in-

WHEAT AND PROSPERITY. To those who are watching for signs of improving business the market page of a newspaper must now be of special interest. Large amounts of capital are lying as idle as Robinson Crusoe's ship-wrecked gold, and prices of so many products have gone so low that the first substantial indications of a normal outlook, it seems almost without doubt, will be followed by a heavier movement of goods and stronger and higher markets. The continued low prices of wheat which have prevailed so long and so persistently do not indicate an absence of all improvement. Though the wheat market would doubtless be helped by greater general prosperity and though general prosperity would be stimulated if the farmer could get more for his wheat, the factor which seems to bear most heavily on the wheat market now is the great supply.

The crop harvested and the winter wheat sown in 1803 in this country were both materially smaller than in 1892, according to the Government estimates, but these estimates are doubted by many, who point to the fact that the Government has erred in making figures too low before. Others maintain the correctness of the estimates, but acknowledge that many heavy crops elsewhere must be taken into consideration. There is a large surplus of wheat in Russia, in India, in Australia, and in South America. In Argentine the surplus is especially heavy, and the people there seem anxious to sell at any

In this country, doubtless, many people bought wheat on the supposition that prices were abnormally low. They have had a long, weary wait for a rise, and that many are getting tired is shown by the fact that sales are free at any advance—a thong that has been rare. There were expectations that a blizzard might Some hold that the wheat, which has grown so rank under untimely warmth, must perish before the blenk winds of March, but that is a theory too airy for present effect. In srket Western millers have had to contend lately not only with low markets, but with increased freight rates which have prevented their reaching the Eastern consumers and sending their goods to the seaboard for export. The reports have been general from millers of this and adjacent States that they have been compelled to refuse orders on this account. They have had difficulty in obtaining wheat from farmers on the basis of the present market and freight rates, and the result is that their business has been extremely dull. Signs of weakening on the part of the railroad companies are

AN INTERESTING LETTER

THE Indiana Woolen Manufacturers' Association has received a letter from Congressman Bretz, of the Second congressional distriet of this State, the brutal frankness of which must have shocked the gentlemen extremely. Yet there are occasions when frankness, even of the brutal type, is best, and we think that Mr. Bretz has chosen his time well. He, in com-mon with all the other Indiana members, has recently received a set of resolutions from the Indiana Woolen Manufacturers' Association, protesting against the passage of the Wilson bill, "or any similar measure." The remonstrants thought that the bill, if passed, "would impose a serious injury on our whole industrial system," and "prove entirely destructive to many of our industries." They had no doubt whatever upon this point, and they were equally convinced that the biil's "discriminations against the farming industry were very noticeable and deplorable," and that they constituted an "assault on the very foundation of all creative industries.' This tender solicitude for the welfare of the farmer on the part of men who have been preying on him for years is a beautiful exhibition of self-sacrificing devotion. But there are some people who will be so unkind as to think that the Indiana manufacturers are opposed to free wool because they know that it will mean higher prices for the domestic article, which is what they mostly use. So when they assure Mr. Bretz that "free wool would result in the annihilation of one of the most important farm industries," we do not wonder that the Congressman answers them somewhat savagely.

Mr. Bretz is of the opinion, and we think he is right, that the farmer is able to take care of himself without any help or suggestions from the manufacturers, for "he is more enlightened and better posted on economic questions now than when the otected barons used to work so succ fully their little three-card game on him"which is very true. "There was," as Mr. when you did the farmers' thinking, reading." "you can not," he says, "hoodwink him any longer with all the calamity-howlers you can station around his house." One of the most amazing things in this whole tariff business is the patient credulity which has for so long made the agricultural classes the easy victims of this politico-business combination which has controlled legislation ever since the war. The farmer has seen wealth and power passing out of his hands and flowing into the hands of capitalists, politicians and trusts. The conditions have grown harder and harder for him, and every increase of the tariff, which was to bring him prosperity, has only served to intensify his sufferings. And yet he has gone on, year after year, voting taxes upon himself for the benefit of the manufacturers. At last, however, he saw a great light, and in 1890, and again in 1892, he voted against the conspiracy which had been robbing him for a quarter of a century. In spite of all this experience the Indi-

If there is any truth in the belief that the passage of the bill putting wool on the free list and cutting your bounties in two will destroy many of your industries, that only seems to condemn the system of hot-house protec-tion. If the four corners of your industries are built upon the backs of the farmer and the laborer and depend for an existence upon the ime he can endure its burdens, then I for one am in favor of resting the farmer for a while and substituting for him the advocates of the ystem of protection for the corner-stone. The remonstrants make a point of the fact that not one manufacturing class in this country has asked for such a law." Mr. Bretz does not seem impressed with the force of this argument. He did not expect much help from this quarter. Quite the contrary. He says:

Everybody expected the manufacturers to fight the bill at every step of its formation, and to pour into a common fund liberally of their ill-gotten gains to defeat it- passage, but this Democratic House intend; to ram it down their throats. Get ready for it.

When the woolen manufacturers that "farmers have not asked for it," the Congressman tells them that they have been misinformed. He represents a district which is mostly agricultural, and he says

My mail each day contains a score or more of letters from farmers in my district, who. I think, understand their own business, and know their wants better than any manu-facturer does for them urging me to vote to put wool on the free list, and to vote for the Wilson bill without further delay.

This is pretty straight talk, and it is encouraging to know that there are men in public life-and the tariff fight has shown that there are many of them-who can neither be deceived, cajoled, nor terrified. The day has gone dest.oy the winter crop, which was rank by, we hope forever, when one and exposed. A "scare" of that they are the people of the United some kind seems badly needed by the States. Mr. Bretz has not the epistolary style of a Chesterfield, but he does hit from the shoulder-as witness the closing paragraph of his letter:

With all due respect to your association, I shall follow the wish of my constituents and consult their interests, and what I conceive to be their future welfare, rather than yours now, after you have nad thirty years' pick at the farmer's and laboring man's pocket.

If there are any waverers or dough-faces in the Democratic ranks, they will do well to read this excellent letter.

THE FEE AND SALARY LAW CONSTITUTIONAL.

THE Supreme Court has decided that the fee and salary law enacted by the Legislature of 1891 is constitutional. Any other decision would have been unfortunate. After years of effort by the people of this State, and over the most desperate opposition of as corrupt a ring as ever disgraced Indiana's politics - the county officers' ringa Legislature was chosen which was wise and patriotic and courageous enough to enact a law which "fixed the compensation of certain State and county officers" and which greatly moderated the fee evil. Necessarily the law was unpopular with a class whose perquisites it cut off. And the sheriff of Vigo county brought a suit to test the legality of the act. With the legal points involved we are not concerned. They were of the usual technical kind-such as that the law embraced more than one subject matter in its title; that it was special and local, and that it was not general. One objection to the law was of a different sort. It was argued that it violated the section of the constitution which "requires that justice shall be administered freely and without purchase; completely and without denial; speedily and without delay." This is so extraordinary-when we reflect that the law was enacted for the benefit of the people-that it is worth while to notice how Judge Coffey disposes of it. He says in his opinion, which is that of the court: in his opinion, which is that of the court:

It is competent for the Legislature to provide for the compensation of public officials by salaries. If it should see proper to do so, we know of no provision of the constitution that would forbid the exaction from persons requiring aid and who are specially benefited by the performance of official services, a reasonable compensation therefor, to be paid into the public treasury to reimburse the public of the expense incurred in providing public for the expense incurred in providing and maintaining such officer. It is not essential to such exactions that they should inure to the personal benefit of the officer. The officers are but of the officer. The officers are but the agents for the State for transacting the the agents for the State for transacting the public business, and it is in its nature a matter wholly immaterial to those requiring their services whether the amount to be paid therefor goes to the officer or into the public treasury, provided no more is exacted than is just and reasonable for the facilities, afforded and the expressions performed. If the afforded and the services performed. If the exactions are called taxes, they become none the less such 'sa to those on whom they are mposed by being paid to the officer, than 'raid into the public treasury. We do not see how there can be any quarrel with such reasoning. There is altogether too much taxation in this country for the benefit of individuals. And it is good to hear a court say: "If the exactions are called taxes, they become none the less such as to those on whom they are imposed, by being paid to the but now he does his own thinking and officer, than if paid into the public treasury,"

Bretz does well to call attention to it; Now they are taxed for the benefit of the public treasury.

The work of the Legislature of 1891 seems to be rock-bottomed. The ballot law, which has redeemed Indiana from the stigma which had so long rested upon her, has been sustained, and it was only the other day that the Supreme Court re pelled another attack upon it. The schoolbook law is still with us. The tax-law has so far stood every test. And now the fee-and-salary law is vindicated.

A HOOSIER MONTE CARLO. THE people of Indiana have been resting quietly, content in the knowledge that Roby was not to be a resort for prize-fighters, ever since Governor Matthews demonstrated to the toughs of Chicago that they could not find an asylum on Indiana soil. But Roby has again become the scene of their lawless activity. It is said that it has now revived as a gambling cenhas now revived as a gambling center; that the gamblers of Chicago The band will quit man's heart, he will breathe free. gather there by thousands every day. The wholesale character of the business here conducted is attested by the fact that nearly one hundred men are necessary to the conduct of the place. Excursion trains from Chicago carry the worst element of that city's population to this obscure little village where they are safe from the Illinois authorities.

But shall they suffer immunity at the hands of Indiana officials? The change from the prize-ring to the gambling den is of kind-not degree. It is no more to the honor of Indiana to permit a colony of gamblers to be established in her territory than to encourage prize-fighting. Why does not the sheriff of Lake county suppress this disgraceful business? In the prize-fight episode he demonstrated that he would not take the initiative. There seems to be but one expectation or expression, and that is that the university will show an increase of its indomitable spirit now, and that local feeling will be quick in response to aid in the work of restoration, which the whole State interested and may have part in. In extending sympathy the other day a mistake of the types made THE NEWS speak of the destruction of the electrical building. Of course, it was manifest that engineering building was meant, this mechanical laboratory, as it might well be called, being intended as the home of all the schools of engineering. There were to have been there not only the departments of civil and electrical engineering, but all of the branches of the mechanical department - the wood and iron-workers in their various fields, and awaiting them was the mass of splendid machinery, models and tools. The loss is great, THE NEWS joins with the spirit of Lafavette and Purdue in urging that the recovery be greater, and that the future find increased progress from the increased energy which

The Ex-Deputy Treasurer of Tipton Charged With Embezzling $40,000 of County Funds, Which Was Squandered in Many Ways.

[Special to The Indianapolis News.] KOKOMO, January 26 .- The case of the State against Calvin Armstrong, the exdeputy treasurer of Tipton county, who is charged with the embezzlement of $40,000 of public funds, was called in the Circuit Court at this place this morning, The trial will occupy a week. The elder Armstrong was convicted in the Hamilton County Court for failure to turn over the funds to his successor in office. THE LOOTING OF THE TREASURY.

The story of the looting of the treasury of Tipton county by James K. Armstrong and his son Calvin, the treasurer and deputy treasurer, was one of the sensations of last year in this region. The elder Armstrong was completing his second term in this office when the crash came. A new courthouse was being built and a special fund was set apart to meet current expenses Last July a warrant for $8,000 was drawn on this fund, which should have contained $24,000, and it was stamped "not paid for want of funds." An investigation was ordered, but not before young Armstrong had been placed under arrest. When the experts had finished, the shortage was found to be $43,689. shortage was found to be $43,689. Then followed a sensational attempt to re-lease Cal Armstrong from juil, in which it is charged that the murder of the turnkey was contemplated. The plot was revealed to the police by Blufe Faulkenberry, an exconvict employed by the conspirators, who stealing. The elder Armstrong was arrested for attempted jail-breaking and was unable to give bond, indictments against him for embezzlement and other peculations being subsequently found. His case was sent to Hamilton county for trial and that of his way to this county. that of his son to this county.

PERSONNEL OF THE ACCUSED Calvin Armstrong is about twenty-six vears old and is rather a handsome fellow though somewhat effeminate in features and figure. Until his father's election to office in 1888, his knowledge of the sporting side of life was confined to the more or less nnocuous games played after hours in the dormitories of the normal school at Valparaiso, where he was educated. his father's first term in office, although he had not been previously noted for his piety, he took a leading part in the church work of the younger people of Tipton.

To this ex-travagance young Armstrong added a fancy for dress that demanded underwear at $20 the garment, and umbrellas at $40 each. He prided himself on being the best dressed man in Tipton county, which was probably the case, but it has proved an expensive luxury to the county, and a very dangerous one for himself.

OUR MINISTER TO HAWAII.

MINISTER WILLIS A GOOD MATCH FOR PRESIDENT DOLE.

A Good Lawyer and a Reformer-Dole ended From Maine Stock and Was Educated at Williams College.

CHICAGO, January 24.—The Post's Wash ington special says: Two men very much in the public eye at present are A. S. Willis, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Hawaii, and S. B. Dole, President of the isional government of Hawaii. It is talked about, especially by the diplomatic corps, during the past few, months, than they. Dole has occupied his present position for a few days over a year. The anniernment fell on last Wednesday. Willis's career as a diplomate is of much shorter duration; but his name is by this time as widely known. It is a difficult task they have to settle. But they are well matched. Willis is widely known here, and Dole, Willis is widely known here, and Dole, though born in Honolulu, was educated in this country, and has many friends and acquaintances in Congress.

Minister Willis has been pretty sharply criticised for his second attempt to get from the Queen a promise of amnesty. Perhaps a man of greater diplomatic experience would not have made the mistake; but so long as diplomatic tenures of office are no greater than four years and until the service is brought under civil service rules and men go into it with the purpose of making diplomacy a life work such slips will, as they have done in the American diplomatic service heretofore, continue to be made. But while his friends admit that he may have made a mistake they indignantly deny have made a mistake they indignantly deny that he did it with malice toward the ad-ministration. And though some members of the administration think differently it is probable that their belief is the outgrowth of disappointment at the failure in the at-tempt to restors the Queen. tempt to restore the Queen.

WILLIS A KENTUCKIAN. Willis is a Kentuckian by birth; and, though not exactly immaculate in his attire, is considered a very courtly man. He is tall, slender, with hair on his face, but on the top of his head. He is a lawyer by profession. He is counted a good one, too. He is also a hard-working man. He owes his success in acquiring a promi-nence in life to his faculty for hard work, rather than for brilliancy. When in Congress he made a reputation for thoroughness and hard work. Some people call him a plodder. At any rate, he served ten consecutive years in Congress, during part of which time he occupied the very prominent posion of chairman of the committee on rivers and harbors. He might have been in Congress now, but his civil service notions "queered" him with his fellow Kentuckians. Next to whisky a Kentucky politician likes patronage. They are the twin "queered" him with his fellow Kentuckians. Next to whisky a Kentucky politician likes patronage. They are the twin necessaries of his life, and woe betide the man who would deprive him of them.

Willis was such a man. And woe came to him. Moreover, there was a woman at the bottom of it. She was Mrs. Virginia C. Thompson. She was also postmistress of Louisville. Furthermore she was a good postmistress. Nobody denied that. But she was appointed by a Republican President, and when Cleveland was elected the Kentucky politicians—gentlemen, seh, every one of them—wanted her scalp. Willis was deputed to get it. To the amazement of his district, and pretty much all Kentucky for that matter, he balked. He didn't pretend to be in the scalping business. It wasn't that the occupant of the office, the possessor of the plum, the juley political morsel which the Kentucky Democrats wanted to roll under and over their tongues, was a woman that he balked. He declared that it didn't matter to him whether the occupant was a man or woman. The occupant had done the business of the office to the satisfaction of the community. That was enough, and by the great horaspoon, the blue-grass region and the finest red liquor that ever came from a Kentucky still, that was enough for him. He would not only not seek her scalp. He would do more. He would help her keep it on her head.

GAVE UP HIS PLACE TO CARRUTH. It took some time for the Kentuckians to recover their breath. When they did they aw by Willis's eye that it would be useless for them to plead, or argue, or threaten, So they simply boded their time and when next Willis sought a renomination he didn't find it. Brother Carruth, one of the wits of Congress and a "What-are-we-hear-for" man from away back, was nominated and elected in Willis's stead. And of all the trophies which Brother Carruth has reaped in his eventful life, none is more prized, in his eventful life, none is more prized, none is pointed to with more pride than the political scalp of Postmistress Thompson, neatly lifted by him from her head at the behest of his bloodthirsty constituency and to make a Kentucky holiday.

But Willis took the rebuff in his calm, unruffled way. He never gets excited. And after a breathing spell he resumed his practice of law, and kept at it till, at the suggestion of Secretary Carlisle, he took the Hawatian mission. He was born in Shelby county, Kentucky, in 1843. He got his early education at the public school and graduated at the Louisville high school. He taught school for four years, then studied law, and in 1866 graduated at the Louisville Law School and began the practice of law. He was elected and re-elected county attorney of Jefferson county, and served till elected to Congress.

PRESIDENT DOLE.

PRESIDENT DOLE. The friends of President Dole describe The friends of President Pole describe him as in temperament pretty much like Minister Willis—cool, collected and always holding himself in perfect self-control. He was born in Honoiulu about fifty years ago. He is a fine specimen of physical manhood, being over six feet tall, broad-shouldered, heing over six feet tall, broad-shouldered, and with keen eyes and a strong, frank face framed in a big beard. His parents came from Maine, His father was first president of Punahou school, which afterward became Cahu College, President Dole attended Williams College in this country and studied law at Cambridge Law School. He was admitted to the bar in Honolulu and went right to the front. He has practiced his profession ever since, save for the interruption last January, which compelled him to drop his prectice to take hold of the reigns of government. He is deseribed as a man of literary tastes, and in conjunction with others edited a journal called the Punch Bowl, and another called the Hawaiian. He took a prominent part in opposing the barbaric reactionary measure in Kalakaua's reign. He was a member of the Hawaiian Legislature in 1884, and drafted and pushed to passage a homestead act, which threw open the government lands to settlement. By that act about seven hundred families have acquired homesteads, paying for them on the five-year installment plan. The idea has been a hobby with him, and since he became President he has drafted a measure to throw open the crown lands, which have heretofore been used to raise revenue for the private purse of the sovereign. There are about 900,000 acres, and preference is to be given to the native Hawaiians. The only terms are that the occupant shall cultivate them, and shall not have the privilege of disposing of them.

HAS HELD OTHER OFFICES. He has several times been a member of the Hawaiian Legislature, and has always been identified with what is known as the "reform movement." In 1887 he was appointed associate justice of the Supreme Court, and was promoted to the second place, which he resigned to take his present position. He is said to be as brave a man personally as lives on the islands. And they tell how, practically single-handed, he stood at the door of the legislative building and faced down an infuriated mob who, with weapons in their hands, demanded ad-mittance. Ha is thoroughly convinced that annexation to the United States is the destiny of Hawaii, and that annexation will contribute to the benefit of both the islands and this country. Until them he will do his best to prevent the restoration of the NATIONAL BOARD OF TRADE. Bankruptcy Laws Discussed-Resolu tions From Indianapolis.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 26 .- There was a sharp discussion yesterday afternoon in the meeting of the National Board of Trade on the resolutions reported by the committee favoring the Torrey bankruptcy bill, and although the resolution indorsing the bill was finally adopted, a great diversity of opinion was expressed during the discussion. The resolu-tion which was ultimately adopted was reported by the Philadelphia delega-tion, but John Field, a member of the delegation, opposed it in a vigorous speech. He was opposed to any form of bankruptcy law. He would, he said, be willing to de business without a single law for the collection of debt, because the entire mercantile system was based on honesty, and it was the business of every dealer to see that he did business with honorable men. Too many business men, in their efforts to exmany business men, in their efforts to ex-tend their operations, were accustomed to engage in the wildest system of credit-giving, trusting to the law to save them from the consequences of their own poor business principles.

The Indianapolis delegates, acting under instructions from their Board of Trade, offered a substitute for the committee reso-instructions from their Beard of Trade, offered a substitute for the committee resolution, urging that whatever bankruptey law was adopted by Congress should be made to apply only to debts then in existence, having no operation in regard to debts subsequently contracted. J. Waldo Smith, of New York, said that any bankruptey law, to be successful, should be built upon these broad principles: To give liberty to the honest debtors; to pay the largest possible percentage to creditors, and to secure the uniform distribution of assets among all the creditors. It ought to provide for the immediate assignment of all the property of the debtor to the creditors as a body; for a meeting of creditors and the election of trustees who should have absolute charge of the assets, having power to sell, unhampered by any court of insolvency or other judicial body. If any were aggrieved in the distribution, they would have the remedy in common law. By this plan lawyers' fees, court fees and other unnecessary expenses would be avoided, and the largest possible percentage would be paid to the creditors. These principles, Mr. Smith said, were at the foundation of the Torrey bill, which he emphatically favored:

The substitute offered by the Indianapolis delegation was defeated without division, and the committee resolutions were adopted

A PICTURE OF A RAT. It Gets a Man Who Had It Printed In Trouble.

CHICAGO, January 26.—Whether or not, a representative of a trade union, whose members are on strike, is justified in distributing circulars containing the names of employers, who refuse to compromise, and surmounting these names with a picture of a big rat, is the question which Justice Kersten is called upon to decide to-day. The trouble grows out of the bakers' strike which -was precipitated by the leading bakers of the city refusing to continue the practice of affixing the union label to their product. An officer of one of the unions concerned undertook to aid the cause by issuing and distributing the circulars already described, and was arrested on the charge of violating the city ordinance. Great interest is being manifested in the case in trade union circles.

UNION RAILWAY REDUCTIONS. The Pay of City Policemen at the Union Station.

The Union Railway Company has reduced the pay of all employes-in some cases 25 per cent. There are two city policemen stationed at the Union station whose salaries are paid by the company into the city treas-The company wants to cut down the pay of these men, but the Board of Public Safety will not consent. It will, if there is any controversy, remove the officers from the station, and have them put on regular police duty.

The men being city policemen, it is a question whether they can receive their pay every mouth or if they must draw it quaterly. The Union railway pays every month.

Three Convicts Pardoned. William Moore, a Switzerland county convict in the State prison, has been parconvict in the State prison, has been par-doned. He was sentenced for ten years for perjury. Rigdon Whitheld, colored, from Hamilton county, serving thirteen years on a criminal charge, was also released. Horace Stofer, of Owen county, who was serving a short term on a charge of burg-lary, also received his liberty.

Pronounces Her a Fraud. The Flower Mission authorizes this statement: The woman making the rounds of the city soliciting aid, by means of a chance-book, and in other ways, using the name of the Flower Mission Society and various other organizations, is obtaining money under false pretenses. The Flower Mission does not solicit aid in such a way.

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS.

RESULTS OF THE REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE MEETING.

The New Officers—Basis of Representation in the Convention-The Retiring Treasurer-The New cretary - Gowdy.

The Republican State committee in session yesterday afternoon elected the follow ing officers:

Chairman—John K. Gowdy, Rushville. Vice-Chairman—Charles Harley, Delphi. Secretary—Russell M. Seeds, Indianapoli Treasurer—James R. Henry, Indianapoli It was decided that the State convention for the nomination of candidates shall be held in Tomlinson Hall, Indianapolis, Thursday, April 26. The basis of representation was fixed at one delegate for every 150 votes east for Harrison for President in 1892. Under the rule fixed the convention wiftl be composed of 1,708 delegates. This is a larger representation of the total vote than has been agreed upon heretofore. The counties were requested by the committee to select delegates to the convention not later than April 24. It was decided yesterday afternoon that there should not be a general meeting of the Republicans who had gathered here to at-tend the meeting of the committee. The leaders of the party, after a conference, reached the conclusion that there has already been too much "brass band" business by the Republicans, and that there was no excuse for holding another "love feast," in order to give a few talkative persons an opportunity to be heard. One of the members of the committee expressed the opinion that the men who did the most the opinion that the men who did the most talking at these meetings are usually the ones who did the least work in the campaign. The decision that there should not be another "love feast" was something of a disappointment to candidates who had come up to the State Capital prepared to make "nowerful" engagedes. 'powerful" speeches.

Horace McKay, who retired as treasurer of the Republican committee yesterday, has filled the position since 1876, eighteen years. No other man ever held an official position with the Republican organization of Indi-ana for so long a time. Men who have been identified with the committee in one capacity or another for many years say that Mr. McKay was retained as treasurer because the party learned early that it could depend on him for an accurate accounting of every dollar that eame into his hands. The report which he submitted to the committee port which he submitted to the committee port which he submitted to the committee yesterday showed that there was in the treasury a small amount of money left over from the campaign of two years ago. The amount is only large enough to pay rent for a few months, and the committee will immediately begin soliciting funds with which to carry on the preliminary work of the campaign. An effort to raise a large amount of money will not be made until after the State convention has been held. The nominees will then be called on for about $10,000. The Republican munagers do not anticipate any embarrassments in getting anticipate any embarrassments in getting money this year. They say they can not recall a time when members of the party were so willing to contribute.

There is a disposition among some of the Republicans of Marion county to criticise severely the action of Merrill Moores, J. W. severely the action of Merrill Moores, J. W. Fesler and Charles Wiltse in making a fight against the re-election of Chairman Gowdy. It is maintained that the war made on Mr. Gowdy did not have the approval of the older heads among the Republicans of the county. There was much bitter feeling engendered by the conduct of the few young Republicans of this county who managed the fight, and some of the old party managers four that it may seriously. party managers fear that it may seriously interfere with the work the county committee might do in the coming campaign.

The new secretary of the committee, Rus-The new secretary of the committee, Russell M. Seeds, is, comparatively, a new man in politics. He has been city editor of the Indianapolis Journal for the last three years, and incidentally has "dabbled" in politics. He watched the interests of the Republican party in the last Legislature, and his advice was frequently taken by the Republicans in the two Houses. Three months ago when Mr. Millikan resigned the secretaryship of the committee, Mr. Seeds secretaryship of the committee, Mr. Seeds was elected secretary pro tem., and since that time has been doing the work of the secretary. The members of the old committee saw that he showed great adaptability for the work, and recommended his election. Mr. Seeds has been doing active newspaper work for ten years. He was for a time owner and editor of a newspaper at Spring-field, O., and later was on the editorial staff of a Kansas City paper.

"The Indiana Republican League has not been receiving enough credit for the politi-cal work it has done," said Wm. L. Taylor, ex-president of the league. "During the last campaign the league had about 900 clubs throughout the State, and every one of them did a great deal of political work.

SILVER AND GOLD.

Henry Knippenberg Talks of the Mining Situation-Carter's Fortune.

Henry Knippenberg, of the Heela Mining Company of Helena, Mont., is spending the winter in the city with his family. "Silver mining," said Mr. Knippenberg, "has practically stopped. The mining of silver and copper has been our main in-dustries, but gold mining will soon take the place of both of them. Little attention has been paid to gold of recent years for the reason that silver has been more profitable to handle. Placer mining for gold was the main industry in the early sixties and it will be again. Great activity is now shown in gold mining, and prospectors are everywhere. Thomas H. Carter, who recently resigned from the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee, was to have been my guest here a few days ago, but other engagements took him by. There's a lucky man! A little while ago he had nothing; politics had swamped him. Now he is in a fair way to be many times a millionaire. Something more than a year ago a man came to him as a client to have him defend a mining claim. The client had no money. Carter won the case for him and received in payment for his services one-tenth of the claim which is at Basin, Mont., about fifteen miles from Butte City. Carter did not think much of it but sometime ago began working it. It proves to be rich in gold, and has been paying him $120,000 a month for seven or eight months. He is now talked of for United States Senator from Montana." cently resigned from the chairmanship of Webster Will Not Be Removed. J. B. Conner, of the Board of Safety, says that the report that J. H. Webster, su-perintendent of the fire department, will be removed, in obedience to the demand from certain partisans, is entirely unnuthenticated. "The removal of Webster has never been thought of by the board," Mr. Conner said to-day. "He will not be removed."

CRUDE OIL AS FUEL.

Burner Invented By John S. Thurman John S. Thurman, a mechanical engineer of this city, who was for some time in the em-ploy of the Big Four railroad engineering department, has patented an invention for using crude oil as a substitute for coal. Although the invention has not been published widely, it has been the subject of investigation by many engineers and has been commended. The improvement has already been introduced in stationary engines and for brick and tile burning. Mr. Thurman has now perfected and patented a locomotive attachment which he believes will give superior service by using crude oil as fuel. The Big Four has used one of the burners in an engine and reports satisfactory results. Mr. Thurman, the inventor, a young tunity to learn drawing was from a similar source. He intends to take a class of 150 boys and at the end of a year to procure positions for the six most proficient. Speaking of his invention, Mr.

Thurman says: "A company is already formed to manufacture this burner, with offices here. It will be incorporated under the laws of the State of Indiana, with a capital stock of $250,000. The company will begin work at once to equip a locomotive to burn fuel oil. Its advantages over coal are that no smoke or sparks will be thrown from the stack, as the burners are absolutely smokeless and sparkless. The oil is carried on the tender sparkless. The oil is carried on the tender in the space now used for coal, and is fed to the burners by air pressure, the air being taken from the air brake reservoir. By this method the full thermal and calorific values of the fuel are obtained. The burners make pure hydrocarbon gas by mixing the oil, air and steam simultaneously. The burner will throw a stream of white fire thirty feet long and twelve feet in diameter. The supply of oil is supplied in a stream one-sixteenth of an is supplied in a stream one-sixteenth of an inch in diameter. The introduction of this device will reduce the cost of building locomotives, as no ash-pan, spark-arrester or extension fronts will be needed. There is absolutely no danger whatever of setting fires to bridges or barns along the line of "The success of hydro-carbon oil as a heat producer is no longer an experiment. One pound of oil is equal to three pounds of coal; one pound of oil will evaporate eightteen pounds of water, while one pound of coal will only evaporate six pounds of water.

"There will be no coal to handle at sta-tions, no ashes or clinkers to remove from the fire-box. The fireman will only have to regulate the valves leading to the burners. If the engine becomes too hot, decrease the fire and save the fuel. The company says that a locomotive can haul a train of cars from Indianapolis to Cincinnati, a distance of 110 miles, with two dollars' worth of oil, where if coal is used it would cost about $4.25. The company has fitted the boilers at the State Deaf and Dumb Institution with burners, which are now in sucessful operation."

THE SAN FRANCISCO FAIR. The Formal Opening To-Morrow-A Great Crowd Expected.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 26 .- Everything is in readiness for the formal open-ing of the Midwinter Exposition to-morrow, and if the weather is favorable the event will be a memorable one. Visitors are arriving by the thousand, and the hotels are filled to overflowing. The official opening ceremonies will, it is thought, be witnessed by at least one hundred thousand spectators, and fully half that number will be in line in the grand parade. The city is magnificently decorated and has a general gala air.

THE MARKETS WERE DULL.

WHEAT CLOSED A SHADE LOWER -CORN WAS ALSO EASIER.

Lower Freight Rates a Factor-Pro visions Dull and Featureless-General Market News-Local Prices and Conditions.

Indianapolis Wholesale Markets. After the beginning of this year there was comething almost amounting to a spurt in business in some jobbing lines. This was due probably to the low condition of retail stocks. rehants continue hopeful that the worst over, and see encouraging signs there has been a slight quieting down noticeable in groceries, dry goods, hardware and drugs. Business started out apparently at a pace that would soon reach the gait of last January, but this has not continued. It THE COFFEE MARKET.

The coffee market kept up considerable riskness and firmness up to about January 15, since which time it has been dull and easy sacks of coffee are accumulating at New without buyers. Local prices have as yet been maffected. The quotations on spot cof-fees in New York to-day are given on the SUGARS DULL.

Not long ago it was noted that a number of retailers were inclined to speculate in sugar, owing to the low prices reached. These now have pretty good supplies, and they are not inclined to add to their stocks with a weak market. The jobbers, therefore, find the presnand for sugars light. Prices were un THE EGG MARKET.

Though the market for fresh eggs has shown some improvement this week owing to the cold weather, the general egg market is in bad condition, and speculators and shippers who have been holding eggs have suffered heavy losses. Held eggs in good condition are obtainable in this city at 10c a dozen by the case. With the long-continue mild weather fresh eggs went into New York, not only from the South but from the West, and while prices went steadily upward in January last year, the reverse has been true this year. The receipts at New York, according to the Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin, have been almost three times they were last January and the arrivais last week were over what they were the corresponding week last year. Large quantities of ice-house and held s have been forced on the market by the our of fresh eggs and the scaring the hoders. The wholesale marof the hoders. The wholesale markets have been completely glutted. The receipts at New York on one day alone last week were 12,500 cases, an unheard of quantity for a January day. Under these conditions, and with large supplies still in reserve at primary points, a short spell of cold weather can hardly be expected much effect. Dry Goods.

Wheat continued dull to the close, with fluctuations within a quarter cent, and the close on May was 1/2c lower than yesterday at 63/2c. The easier leefing in corn was due to a cut in freight rates and the anticipation of a larger movement. The clearances also were smaller. Oats acted in sympathy with corn. Higher prices for hogs at the yards caused a stronger .eeiing in provisions at the start, but trading soon became dull and the closing was easier.

Novel Condition In Local Politics.

[Special to The Indianapolis News.] KOKOMO. January 26 .- A somewhat novel condition in local politics has been brought bout by the announcement of the Rev. S. Edgar Nicholson that he will be a candidate or nomination as Representative before the Republican county primary election of March 6. Mr. Nicholson is the editor and publisher of the morning Times, which deplares itself to be a non-partisan and strictly ndependent newspaper. He is just now bitterly assailing the Republican municipal government, and demanding clean men for office at the spring election. The party managers are at a loss to understand how Mr. Nicholson can subscribe to the conditions governing the primary, which bind him to support its nominees, and at the same time conduct a non-partisan paper. He was defeated for this nomination two years ago by Richard Bassett, a colored man.

A ROYAL WELCOME EXTENDED TO HIM AT BERLIN.

Great Enthusiasm Manifested By the Throngs of People-His Journey To the Capital-Entertained By the Emperor.

BERLIN, January 26.—A dispatch from Friedrichsrhue received here to-day was the signal for an outburst of cheering when its ntents were made known in front of the different newspaper offices, in the clubs and other public places, for it announced that Prince Bismarck, ex-Chancellor of the German empire, the "man of blood and iron," had started for Berlin at 9:30 a. m. in order to cement the reconciliation which has taken place between the Emperor and himself after four long years of bitterness.

Prince Bismarck, when he left the castle of Friedrichsrhue, was accompanied by Count Herbert Bismarck and by Drs. Schweinger and Chrysander. The whole neighborhood turned out to cheer the vetschweinger and Chrysander. The whole neighborhood turned out to cheer the veteran statesman as he departed for Berlin, and six beautiful young girls, dressed entirely in white, presented the Prince with a handsome laurel wreath inscribed: "A Happy Journey." These six young girls, who also carried baskets of flowers, preceded Prince Bismarck's party to the railroad station, strewing the road with flowers, amid the vociferous cheering of the immense crowds which lined the route, and did their utmost to make the veteran statesman feel that he had a large share of the hearts of the patriotic Germans. Prince Bismarck wore the uniform of the Magdeburger Yellow Cuirassiers, the corps he loved so well, and whose uniform he has been so frequently pictured as wearing. Over his uniform the Prince wore a heavy, fur overcoat, and upon his head was the traditional German army officer's cap. The Prince seemed greatly pleased with the honors extended to him, and shook hands with many of those who gathered at the with many of those who gathered at the station in order to see him off. As the train left the depot the crowds assembled broke out into loud eries of "Auf Frohes Wiedersehn.

A HAPPY BECONCILIATION. Previous to the departure of the Prince and his party from the castle of Friedrichsrhue an atmosphere of the most pleasurable excitement prevailed there, and in fact this delightful feeling had prevailed at Friedrichsrhue since Tuesday, when the id-de-camp of the Emperor, Col. Von Moltke, paid his memorable visit to the Moltke, paid his memorable visit to the Prince and brought with him the glad tidings that the Emperor was seeking a reconciliation with the veteran statesman who had done so much to build up the German Empire, There is no doubting that Prince Bismarck shows unmistakable pleasure at the reconciliation and it is noticed that it has had the effect of greatly improving his health as well as his greatly improving his health as well as his spirits. Since Tuesday last Bismarck has seemed to be a changed man and has been laughing and joking in his old manner. He also has been able to take long walks in the grounds of the castle and has personally answered a number of the many telegrams of congratulation which have been pouring in upon him from all quarters since the an-nouncement was made that he had become reconciled to the Emperor.

Prince Bismarck and his family breakfasted at an early hour this morning, and the family and servants were delighted when they noticed that the Prince had donned his historic Cuirassier uniform for the first time in several years. He seemed pleased at his appearance, for the handsome uniform made him look like a giant, when compared with the frock coat of civilian attire, which he has been in the habit of wearing recently. The presentation of the laurel wreath at the hands of the young girls, previously referred to in this iispatch, highly pleased the veteran statesman. The train, engine and railroad depot were gaily decked with flowers and bunting and every station along the route to Berlin was decorated and crowded with people who cheered the Prince on his way to the

THE SCENE IN BERLIN. In Berlin itself the people were astir at a much earlier hour than usual, and the streets soon became filled with people in holiday attire, pressing onward in order to take up the best position possible along the route which the Prince would follow from the Lehrte or Hanovarian station through the Brandenburg gate and along to the imperial castle.

The Emperor intended to welcome Prince Bismarck in person at the railroad station, but at the last moment was obliged to send his regrets, as he was obliged to meet the King of Saxony at the Althal station at exactly the same hour that Prince Bismarch o arrive in Berlin.

All the streets through which Prince Bismarck was to pass were handsomely decorated, and the windows of the houses began to fill with people long before the hour set for the arrival of the Prince's train in Berlin. Large crowds gathered at 9 o'clock along the line of the route, and their num-bers continued to increase until noon, when the police had all they could do with the assistance of the military to manage the vast multitudes gathering in order to wel-come Prince Bismarck back to Berlin after so long and painful an absence. The crowds were thickest in the neighborhood of Lehrte station, Alsen Platz, Koenig's Platz, the Brandenburg gate, Pariser Platz, and especially along Unter-den-Linden and the Lust garten. Stands, handsomely decorated, were erected at various points from which a good view could be had and a life-size wax figure of Prince Bismarck was placed in front of the arcade called Die Passage. CHEERS FOR THE EMPEROR.

While the crowds on Unter-den-Linder were waiting the arrival of the Prince, they suddenly saw Emperor William, attended by a single aid-de-camp, returning from a ride in the Thiergarten, the largest park near the town and to the west of the Brandenburg gate. This was at about 11 o'clock and as the Emperor rode quickly toward the Schloss, or royal palace, he was frantically cheered by the people, who seemed determined to show him bow heartily they appreciated the fact that he had become reconciled to Prince Bismarck. The reception accorded to the Emperor upon this occasion was entirely unprecedented and evi-dently delighted him, for he smiled and saluted on all sides. Shortly before noon the crowd about the Lehrte station was most dense and remarkable from the fact that in front of the station as well as upon the platform was a large assemblage of distinguished officers and public officials, all dressed in gorgeous uniforms and all assembling there by special order of Emperor William, who had di-rected that all the officers of the head-quarters' staff, the chiefs of the civil and military cabinets and other similar officers should attend the reception of Prince Bis-marck in full uniform at the railroad sta-tion mentioned. In addition there were present representatives from nearly society in and about Berlin, and a la force of municipal officers and students. Shortly after noon Prince Henry of Prussia, a brother of Emperor William, surrounded by a large and brilliant staff, rode up to the station, where he was heartly cheered. Lehrte railroad station was most testefully deser cheered. Learne railroad station was most tastefully decorated with flags, flowers, evergreens and bunting, and red carpets were laid on the platform and down the steps leading from the station. Around the neighborhood of the depot a strong force of military and police guarded every point and kept spaces clear for the most distinguished officials.

When all the officers had assembled in and about the Berlin depot the scene presented by the many and various uniforms was brilliant and attractive in the extreme. All the popular generals and public offi-cials were enthusiastically cheered when recognized, and on all sides the people showed how thoroughly they appreciated the Prince's visit and the reconciliation which had taken place between the great statesman and the Emperor.

THE ARRIVAL OF BISMARCK. Promptly at 1 o'clock the train bearing Prince Bismarck and his party entered Lehrte station, and, as it slowed up at the platform, Prince Bismarck was seen at the window of his carriage and was loudly

window of his carriage and was loudly cheered by those who recognized him within the depot. This cheering was the signal for an outburst of applause, which, being taken up by the crowds outside the station, seemed to be carried throughout Berlin as it was taken up and carried along from street to street to the palace itself, where the storms of cheering gave notice that he of blood and iron had once more set foot within the capital of the empire he had done so much to create.

When the train had come to a standstill Prince Bismarck came upon the platform, where he was met by Prince Henry of Prussia and a large crowd of distinguished officers. Prince Henry extended a most cordial greeting to Prince Bismarck, and the latter shook hands with many of the distinguished officers present, several of whom, especially the veterans, were affected considerably at this meeting with the Iron Chancellor once more. In an interval during which a number of most complimentary little speeches were made Prince Bismarck was escorted by Prince Henry to one of the imperial carriages which was in waiting at the entrance of the depot.

A ROYAL WELCOME.

A ROYAL WELCOME. As the Prince emerged from the station and was recognized by the people, a storm of "hochs" and "hurrahs" arose from the crowd until it assumed a dealening, roaring sound, which could be heard for miles and miles. No man could help but feel proud miles. No man could help but feel proud at such a welcome, and at such evidence of a strong hold upon the hearts of the people. Prince Bismarck was the first to enter the imperial carriage, and ha took a seat on the right of Prince Heary of Prussia, who followed him into the vehicle. Then, the way being led by the detachment of cuirassiers, their brilliant accountements and armor glittering and clashing most musically as they proceeded, the Prince started for the palace followed by another detachment of cuirassiers. The carriage and the cavalry started at a slow trot, most enthusiastically cheered by the crowds lining the streets.

From the windows of the houses along the route followed by the Prince's carriage to the palace, and from the crowd of people gathered in the streets, showers of dowers were thrown into the servers.

riage to the palace, and from the crowd of people gathered in the streets, showers of flowers were thrown into the carriage, and people shouted themselves hoarse in their efforts to welcome the Prince. But more touching still was the fact that numbers of faces streaming with tears were to be seen among those who gathered to welcome Bismarck back to Berlin, and many of those who shouted the most justify for the ex-Chancellor, did so with their handkerchiefs wet with tears. Prince Bismarck was evidently much moved by the popular demonstration, and it can safely be said that no one, Emperor or King, ever received a warmer welcome in Berlin.

Emperor or King, ever received a warmer welcome in Berlin.

When the procession reached the gates of the castle Prince Bismarck and Prince Henry of Prussia alighted and walked together down the lines of the guard of honor, which was composed of the Garde Hussaren and the Jaeger Garde, which were drawn up there, with bands playing and colors flying. The guard of honor and the escort of cuirassiers marched past the two princes, who afterward entered the palace, Prince Henry conducting Prince Bismarck into the building with every mark of respect.

In the palace Emperor William received Prince Bismarck with great distinction, surrounded by a brilliant staff of officers of the highest rank. The welcome which the Emperor extended to Prince Bismarck was extremely cordial, and it was evident that the Prince was much touched at the the Prince was much touched at the heartiness in the Emperor's manner. The three eldest sons of Emperor William were present at the reception. At 1:45 p. m. luncheon was served in the Emperor's private rooms where only three covers were laid—one for the Emperor, one for the Empress and one for Prince Bismarck. The Madgeburg ouirassiers, Prince Bismarck's regiment, have come to Berlin by the Emperor's order especially for this occasion, and a detachment of this splendid cavalry regiment was placed on guard in front of the apartments assigned to Prince Bismarck. After luncheon, Prince Bismarck retired to his own room for a rest and Emperor William went for a ride. Prince Bismarck's arrival at the castle was followed by an enthusiastic succession of followed by an enthusiastic succession of demonstrations on the part of the people. Thousands upon thousands of people packed the square in front of the castle, singing the national anthem, "Wachtam Rhein" and "Deutschland Ueber Ailes."

The enthusiasm was so great that the Em peror and Empress, the young princes and Prince Bismarck repeatedly appeared at a window, bowing in response to the mani-festations, which continued throughout the afternoon. At 3 o'clock Chancellor Von Caprivi, followed by all the secretaries of State, called at the castle and left them cards for Prince Bismarck.

Needed No Interpreter. [Cincinnati Times-Star.]

A gentleman of a Teutonic cast of countenance was a witness in one of the Common Pleas courts the other day. The first question was a puzzler, and the witness hesitated. "Perhaps we need an interpreter," suggested one of the attorneys. A young attorney volunteered his services, and the questions proceeded. The attorney had some trouble in translating the questions, and it was seen that the witness was growing impatient. Finally he answered one of the questions in good English, not waiting for it to be translated. Then he remarked triumphantly to the young attorney "perhaps I speak as better English as you do German." Then there was a roar in the court room. A gentleman of a Teutonic cast of counroar in the court room.

Consideration For Animals. In every country in Europe there is evidence of an increase of consideration for domestic animals. In Belgium dogs are now domestic animals. In Belgium dogs are now accorded the same rights as human beings on the government railroads; in Germany men have been imprisoned for calling the Emperor's horses hard names, and now the magistrates of Zurich, in Switzerland, have decided that it can no longer be consided an insult to apostrophize a man by the name of an animal, and that one may call one's neighbor a pig, a donkey, or even a "calf's head," with impunity.

THE DRAMA.

"A BRASS MONKEY." "A BRASS MONKEY."

It is a pleasure to commend in hearty terms such a performance as that given of "A Brass Monkey" at the Grand Opera House last night. The play is one of the best that Hoyt has written. There is in it such variety of humor, from a kind very the state of the best that they have the same than the best that they have the same than the best that they have the same than the best than the same than the best than the same than the best than the same close to pathos, as when Jonah, who has told "Baggage" to stand in the corner five minutes for some naughtiness, steals up with a stick of candy in his hand and releases her at the end of two, because his tender heart cannot bear that she should be unhappy even for a moment, to the broad farce of Dodge Work, "a revengeful man," who, with his companions, Mr. Barnes, of New York, and Mr. Potter, of Texas, forms an inimitable trio. There is more substance to "A Brass Monkey" than to several of the Hoyt plays, but there is the same wealth of amusing situation and eccentricities of character that is found in others of a lighter nature. Its quips and turns are as delightful as they are unexpected. The situations do not seem farfetched. From the first the onward move-ment is so irresistible, so all-impelling, that one absurdity after another is granted without thought of protest. In short, to see "A Brass Monkey" is to have an even-ing of light, wholesome entertainment, of the kind that is a genuine recreation after the day's work. Its stream of fun is clear

In the excellent company, Mr. George F. Marion was the most prominent, though there are one or two others, notably Mr. Halstead, who are factors of almost equal importance in the entertainment. Mr. Marion is a finished comedian. He has the happy faculty of making his audience laugh, not at, but with him. Among so much that was good, it is difficult to single out any special act of Mr. Marion for particular mention, but his dance with Miss Swain in the first scene is perhaps his greatest success. He has several songs which seem all too brief when the amount of enjoyment they give is considered.

Mr. Halstead, who plays the part of Dodge Work, the mourning relative, who, on hearing that he has been left out of the will, suddenly casts aside his emblems of grief (which he subsequently selis at auction) and develops a taste for the ball game grief (which he subsequently sells at auction) and develops a taste for the ball game and bad company, is a born comedian. He has magnetism and is unusually resourceful. He is unique. The song of "The Forgetful Mau" and: "Razzle Dazzle," sung with two other members of the company would bear repetition many times. So much did Mr. Halstead add to the sum total of enjoyment that his reappearance after an interval was always an assurance that some new feature of excellence was about to be given.

Miss Swain as "Baggage" is so different from the ordinary, tiresome stage-child as to be positively refreshing. There is not a particle of affectation about her. She is sweet, danty and child-like, sings well and dances beautifully. Mr. Riley's dance in the second act was well done. The company, as a whole, is a good one, and deserves the recognition of crowded houses. Other performances will be given to-night, to-morrow afternoon and to-morrow night.

Celebrating Burns's Birthday. At Young Men's Christian Association

Hall last night was given the fourteenth annual entertainment of the Indianapolis Caledonian Quoiting Club. These enternents are held on the birthday of Robert Burns. The association building was decorated with evergreens and bunting, the Scotch thistle and flag having a prom-inent part in the decorations. Governor Matthews was present on the platform and made an half-hour speech eulogistic of the Scottish bard. He told the audience, that Burns belonged to the whole world. He said that Burns was above all the poet of liberty. All through his verses is borne the great thought of the equality of man. The Governor said that the true worth of the poet had not been discovered during his lifetime. Both Carlyle and Walter Scott had thought that Burns was a powerful writer, but they had said that his mind had been cramped. In spite of the drawbacks that attended his life his work had found a wide recognition, and the desire of the poet had been amply gratified. The Governor's speech was interspersed with anecdote and was heartily applanded. A musical entertainment followed, There were songs by the Caledonian quartet and the Bankin quartet. Mr. Bankin sang some songs in costume which were well received. At the conclusion of the entertainment the audience joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne." the poet of liberty. All through his country used to regard a white buffalo hide as of exceptional value, and for one such they would give several horses. Nowadays the aborigines of Alaska set such store by a white marten skin that they will pay five fox skins for it. The reverence with which white elephants are regarded in Siam is well known. In Africa, King Cetawayo, who was subdued by the British, kept a herd of royal white cattle. They were said to be very beautiful. The zebu, or sacred ox of India, is white. Blue, by the way, is most rare in mammals, the only species in which that color is found being the blue-faced mandril. The so-called 'blue fox' is ruther a deen drah.

The "Two Johns" at the Park. John C. Stewart's "Two Johns" comedy company appeared at the Park Theater yesterday. It will remain during the week. The chief interest centers about the two characters represented by Quinn Phillips and William B. Murray, whose personal re-semblance is striking. Both are large, fat men. and, by the aid of disguises so well-known to the stage, they are able to practice a very clever deception. There are a number of specialties introduced. The "Two Johns" have amused the public for a dozen years or more, and the reception the comedy received yesterday and last night indicates a renewal of popularity.

ANIMALS WHICH FURNISH THE MARKET WITH FURS.

"It is a curious fact that many wild animals increase with the settlement of a counmals increase with the settlement of a country, feeding in the cultivated fields and thus procuring food more readily than when the land was unreclaimed. An example of this is afforded by the rabbit, which has-increased so enormously in some parts of the world—notably in Australia and New Zealand, into which it was imported. In 1891 no less than 8,198 bales of rabbit skins from New Zealand and Australia were offered for sale in London. Vast numbers are killed for the use of meat-preserving companies, which put them up in serving companies, which put them up in cans. In this shape, they are sold in great quantities for ships' stores, being a very cheap sort of meat. The fur is chiefly utilized for making soft ielt hats. For this purpose the hair is cut off by machinery and passed through a blower, which throws it upon a revolving copper disc. As it ac-cumulates it adheres together and forms a sort of cloth.

THE GREATEST- FUR MARKET. "The greatest fur market of the world is London, where auctions are held periodi-cally. These sales, at which pelts of a thousand kinds are disposed of in vast thousand kinds are disposed of in vast quantities, are attended by merchants from everywhere. They are conducted in silence save for the voice of the auctioneer, bids being made by nodding the head. Elsewhere in Europe various fairs furnish facilities for trading in furs. The chief medium through which that sort of business is transacted in Germany is the Leipsie fairs where skins of carts semirrels and airs, where skins of cats, squirrels and Persian lambs are dealt in to a large extent. There are similar markets for furs at Frank-

There are similar markets for furs at Frankfurt-on-the-Oder and at several towns in Siberia. The fair of Kiatka, on the border of China, is the depot from which Chinese traders in pelts make their purchases, particularly of ermine.

The prices for skins of all sorts depend much ou fashion, and hence are apt to fluctuate considerably from year to year.
A fine lion skin with a black mane is worth $300, but the hide from a menagerie specimen of the royal beast, being never so handsome, will hardly bring more than $125. Tiger skins cost much less than lion skins, but the hide of a white tiger, which is an albino and extremely rare, will fetch a small fortune. Tiger claws are mounted for pins by jewelers. They are worth $1 or even more apiece in the rough. There is a even more apiece in the rough. There is a woolly tiger of Mongolia which has a fur of great richness. The length and thickness of the hair is due to the fact that the animal lives in a cold region.

DOMESTIC CATS. "Domestic cats contribute largely to the supplies of the fur markets of the world. Of late they have been turned to commercial account in another shape, many tons of them in the form of mummies, as embalmed by the ancient Egyptians, being carried to England and sold at a high price for manure. The substance known in trade as 'civet' is obtained from the so-called 'civet cat.' It is of a yellow color and has the consistency of honey. Its smell resembles that of musk. When undiluted, the odor is so powerful as to be offensive, but, when properly mixed with other substances. when properly mixed with other substances, it becomes agreeably aromatic and delicate. It is utilized chiefly for mingling with and improving the bouquet of less costly seents. Civet cats are sometimes kept in wicker cages for the purpose of collecting this secretion, it is said. The latter is used by women in the north of Africa for powdering their necks. It is exported from Aden in horns.

"Wolves furnish many skins to the fur dering their necks. It is exported from Aden in horns.

"Wolves furnish many skins to the fur market. In Russia about 170,000 of them are killed annually, a reward of 10 roubles a head being offered for them. During 1889 80,000 of them were slain in the province of Wologda alone, the number of persons killed by wolves in the same province that year being 203. The Eskimo of the Arctic practice an ingenious method of slaughtering wolves—planting a stake in the ice with a blade of flint fastened to the upper end. About the flint blade they wrap a piece of blubber, which freezes hard. Presently along come some wolves and lick at the blubber until the edges of the flint cut their tongues. Tasting their own blood, they become frantic and attack each other, the fight continuing until the whole pack lies dead. Next day the artful hunter comes dead. Next day the artful hunter comes along and skins them. That is one reason why wolfskin rugs are so cheap to-day. FROM CHINESE DOGS.

"Chinese dogs, belonging to a peculiar breed native to that country, supply much material for robes, a good one requiring eight skins. They are exported by way of Shanghai to London and New York. In color they are black, white, fawn and mottled. About 75,000 of these hides are sold in England annually. In Manchooria and eastern Mongolia are thousands of dog farms, which rear all the way from a score to hundreds of these canine beasts for market every year. The skins take a brilliant black dye, and make excellent sleigh robes. They are used to a considerable extent for making men's coats in Canada. The skins of Siberian dogs are likewise utilized as fur. But the Siberian animal which yields for its size the most costly of all furs is the sable. It is only about nine inches long, including the tail, and in order to trap a single specimen the hunter must often endure many a hard day of exposure and toil. From 12,000 to 25,000 sables are caught annually, many of the pelts being employed in China for the robes of mandarins. in England annually. In Manchooria and muffs, capes and boas, is commonly but erroneously known under the name of 'sable.' The tails are made up separately into garments, which fetch very high prices. They are also used in the manufacture of the finest 'sable' paint brushes. No part of the creature is lost. Even the skins of the baws and throat are sold by the pound to traders, who make them into coat linings and tobacco pouches. The Hudson Bay Company exports to England about 70,000 of the pelts annually. Yet another little animal, mostly taken in Siberia, furnishes the ermine fur, which is worn by the Queen of England, and is also utilized for the state robes of British peers. Nevertheless, it is no longer so fashionable as it used to be, and hence is much less costly than formerly.

BADGER SKINS FOR BRUSHES.

BADGER SKINS FOR BRUSHES. "Badger skins are largely used nowadays for shaving brushes. For that purpose the hair is cut off close to the pelt and sorted into lengths, being then tied up in neat bundles and sold by weight. The hide itself is employed for glue. Skunk fur has come much into favor of late years. In 1891 nearly 700,000 skunk skins were sold in London, though not long ago they were considered valueless. The highest priced skin is that of the sea otter, a single pelt some-Judges. The Indians of this white buffalo hide and for one such corses. Nowadays set such store by they will pay five erence with which arded in Sign is such as the state of the sea otter, a single pelt sometimes fetching $1,000. This fur is principally used in Russia for the collars of noblemen's coats. Many thousand mole skins are collected annually and made into waistcoats. Squirrel skins are taken for taxes in parts of Siberia. A fur most extensively employed is that of the musk-rat, from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 skins being marketed in England yearly."

SUPREME COURT.

Abstracts of Cases Decided Thursday, January 25, 1894.

MUNICIPAL INDEBTEDNESS - CONSTITUTIONAL 17,167. Joseph T. Brashear et al. vs. City of Madison et al. Jefferson C. C. Affirmed. Howard, C. J.

A municipal indebtedness is not created within the meaning of the thirteenth article of the constitution of the State, restricting the power of municipal corporations to contract debts to a limited per centum of their taxable property, by contracting for something which the Common Council has determined is necessary for the welfare of the city, and agreeing to pay for it out of funds appropriated to that use and at that time in the city treasury or provided for by taxes already levied. The complaint to enjoin the indebtedness in this case does not allege that the money is not in the treasury to pay it, nor that the taxes produced by the levy will not be sufficient to CONSTITUTIONAL LAW-FEE AND SALARY LAW.

17,026. John O. Henderson, auditor, vs. State ex rel. James W. Stout. Marion C. C. Reversed. Coffey, J. (McCabe, J., dissenting) (1) The power to declare a statute unconsti-tutional is a high one and will not be exercised anless the statute is clearly, ralpably and plainly in conflict with the constitution. (2) The act of March 9, 1891, known as the "fee and salary law," is not in violation of Section 19, Article 4, of the State constitution, which declares that "every act shall embrace but one subject and matters properly connected there-with, which subject shall be expressed in subject and matters properly connected therewith, which subject shall be expressed in the title." The matters embraced in the act are matters properly connected with the subject designated in the title and subdivisions of such subject. (3) Nor is the act in violation of Section 12, Article 1, of the constitution, which requires that "justice shall be administered freely and without purchase." etc. The requirement in the act that lees shall be collected by county officers and paid into the county treasury, is not a levy of taxes for general revenue, but to create a fund cut of which those who perform official services may be paid the salaries fixed by law. (4) Nor is such act in violation of Sections 22 and 23, Article 4, of the constitution, prohibiting the passage of special laws and requiring all laws to be of uniform operation throughout the State, because it is made applicable only to officers elected after the time at which it became a law. (5) The act is not invalid as to county clerks and sherits because of the failure to fix the salaries of the auditor, treasurer and recorder of Shelby county. Whether it is invalid as to auditors, treasurers and recorders on that account the court does not decide. A statute may be constitutional and valid in part and unconstitutional and availd in part and unconstitutional and invalid in part.

COMPLAINT — THEORY — CONTRACT — BREACH — REMEDY—VERDICT. 16,539. Marion Balue vs. Robert H. Taylor et al. Sullivan C. C. Affirmed. Dailey, J. al. Sullivan C. C. Ammed. Daney, J.

(1) While it is true that a complaint must proceed upon a definite theory, such theory, as for instance whether it is an action on contract or tort, is to be determined from the ages for the breach; or, where the other party has made a recission impossible, he may sue for the breach. (3) A verdict is sufficient if the court can understand its meaning.

DANGER JUST AHEAD. "It is surprising how many people are suffering to-day from so-called coughs, colds and influenca."

The remark was made by a very prominent professor, connected with one of the leading New York hospitals. Continuing he said:

"It is not these things that are troubling people, but it is an advanced form of our old enemy, the grip. People icel out of sorts, sneeze, have pains in the muscles and bones, have no appetite, lose all interest in the world and wonder what is the matter. It is the grip; nothing else.

appetite, lose all interest in the world and wonder what is the matter. It is the grip; nothing else.

"Now, all such symptoms need to have prompt treatment. The attack must be met and repelled at once, or it is certain to run into something serious. I know of but one way to certainly avoid these troubles which are now so common, and that is, to immediately counteract them by using a good, pure, strong stimulant. Nothing of the ordinary kind, but something pure and scientific. For this purpose nothing has ever equalled Duffy's Pure Mait Whiskey, which is acknowledged to-day by physicians and scientific people to be the only pure, medicinal mait whiskey upon the market."

The words of the professor are true, and they carry a wonderful meaning to many men and women who are suffering with the first symptoms of grip, or else grip in its advanced stages. For all such people we offer a word of advice; which is to take the best means to overcome these troubles and do not permit any dealer to swerve you from your purpose to have that which has proven itself by years of use to be the best and purest stimulant in the world.

THE ORIENTAL CHRIST, BY MCZOONDAR.

NEW EDITION. CLOTH, $1.25.

The "idea" in this remarkable book may be best briefly stated by combining a saying of Keshub Chunder Sen, the Brahmo leader, with a sentence from the author's Introduction: "Was not Jesus Christ an Asiatic." He and his disciples were Asiatics, and all the agencies primarily employed for the propagation of the gospel were Asiatic. In fact, Christianity was founded and developed by Asiatics in Asia. . Yet the Christ that has been brought to us in India is an Englishman, with English manners and customs about him, and with the temper and spirit of an Englishman in him . . Go to the rising sun in the east, not to the setting sun in the west, if you wish to see Christ in the plenitude of his glory and in the fullness and freshness of the primitive dispensation. When we speak of the Western Christ, we speak of the incarnation of theology, formalism, ethical and physical force, When we speak of an Eastern Christ, we speak of the incarnation of unbounded love and grace."

DEATH OF KRUNCKEL.

CORONER LOOKING INTO THEORY OF MURDER.

The Story Told By Four Men Of May wood - Joe Anselm's Peculiar End-Found Drowned In a Three - Foot Tank.

There have been developments at the Krunckel, the man found face downward in three feet of water in White river on Sunday, January 14. It was at first thought to be an accidental death. The autopsy showed that his neck was dislocated and broken. That might have been done in falling into the river. The case would have ended with a verdict of "Death from drowning" had it not been for recent testimony. The death oc-curred near Maywood. Maywood has one saloon. Lewis Crowe, George Crowe, Henry Wyrick and Stephen Lichner say that a week before the body was found they heard a fight in front of the saloon. They heard that somebody had been hurt. Lichner lives opposite the saloon. He says that after the fight he heard a wagon drive slowly away in the direction of the river. slowly away in the direction of the river.
Next morning Lichner and the Crowe boys tracked the wagon a short distance and found blood along the way. The wagon had carried some one who was bleeding.
There is a lane that runs from the saloon to the river. It is desolute and deserted. Half way between the saloon and the river there is a house, vacant, and is snunned by most people. It is thought to be uncanny. The Crowe boys and Lichner went into the house a few days after Krunckei's body was discovered and found a pallet of straw in one corner of the room. It was pressed down as if by a man's shape. It was covwas discovered and was pressed down as if by a man's shape. It was covered with blood, and there was blood on the walls of the room.

A theory has been evolved from these facts. It is known that a number of fishermen were at the saloon, and it is thought by these witnesses that Krunckel got into a fight and was hurt; that he was carried to the deserted house by his assailants and, after lingering for some time, that he died there; that the dead body was taken and flung into the river. The water where the body was found was so shallow that a man could hardly have drowned in it. For the same reason a body could hardly have floated down to the place where it was found.

JOE ANSELM'S END.

Found Drowned in a Three-Foot Tank

Joe Anselm was missing. He was the janitor at the Hide, Leather and Belting Company, and worked in the basement of the store at 125 South Meridian street. He had been a trusted employe for over seven years. Yesterday he was ill. He said it was hard times, and that he must work anyhow. Other employes saw him working in the basement. It was his duty to attend to the fires and see that the building was kept at a comfortable temperature At 10 o'clock yesterday morning he was missed. Some one asked for him and he could not be found. Everybody became excited. Anselm had been acting rather queerly of late. A search was made for him; up-stairs and down-stairs, behind huge piles of leather, in the dark recesses of the coal-hole. He could not be found. A clerk was sent over to St. Mary's school where Anselm had a son at school. The boy said his father was at home sick, that he had left him there in the morning, and magined that he was still there. The clerk came back and reported. There was a general feeling of relief. Anselm, feeling ill, had gone home, without saying a word to any one. After dinner it was found that his lunch basket and his street clethes were hanging in their accustomed places in the basement. Anselm must have gone home in his working clothes. However, it was thought that there was no use to search forhim. He was at home and they supposed that he was all right.

NOT AT HIS HOME. piles of leather, in the dark recesses of the

NOT AT HIS HOME. When the day's work was done, everybody was preparing to go home, Anselm's wife came to the store and asked for her husband. "Isn't he at home?" she was asked. No; he had left home in the morning, and had not been heard from since The boy was mistaken. Another search made. Still Anselm could not be found.

The search was at last abandoned. He must have gone away somewhere. He would probably return in the morning. would probably return in the morning.

Early this morning a young man, Fred Bowers, went to the store to do Anselm's work. He went'down to the basement and attended to the fires. He was rather nervous, for Anselm was missing, and it was dark. In one corner of the room was a box—a sort of tank to receive the return water from the heating pipes. It was only three feet deep. It was only third that the pof the tank was covered with a lid. Two of the boards were loose. Bowers happened to knock one of the boards to one side, and, in the darkness of the box, saw a bundle of rags. He wondered what could have got into the tank. He had forgotten about Anselm. He turned up the light.

BODY IN THE TANK.

BODY IN THE TANK. The hundle of rags covered Anselm's elbow, which was protruding above the water. Bowers ran out and gave the alarm. Anselm was dead. It was impossible for him to have fallen into the tank, and the general belief is that he crawled in and had laid down to die. The opening was so small that another board had to be wrenched from the top of the tank before the body could be removed. The coroner was called He decided at once that it was a case of suicide. The body was removed and prepared for burial.

Anselm lived at No. 6 Smithson avenue.

Anselm lived at No. 6 Smithson avenue. He had a wife and three children, one a grown son. He was German by birth and had been in this country forty years. He was a thrifty man and saved a little money. There is no known reason for suicide. He left no word. He simply went to his accustomed work and disappeared.

THE THORNTON AUTOPSY.

He Died of Suffocation—Death of the Daughter—Wife's Condition Alarming. An autopsy on the body of Edward Thornton disclosed the fact that he died rom suffocation. The little girl, Belle Thornton, died yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. She appeared to be much better and was conscious some time before she died. The mother, Eliza Thornton, is still living, but she is suffering a great deal, and may die. The coroner thinks that there is no doubt that natural gas caused the deaths.

The Gray Club's Ball. The annual ball under the auspices of the Gray Club, was held in Tomlinson Hall last night. A large company was present. Governor and Mrs. Matthews led the grand march. There were twenty numbers on the dance program. The hall was decorated elaborately and the committees exerted themselves to make the occasion complete in its arrangements and its pleasures.

A Word to the Coroner and to Consumers of Natural Gas.

of Natural Gas.

To the Editor of The Indianapolis News:

As a tax-payer, I wish to condemn the useless autopsies and chemical analyses, made at great expense to the county, and by persons who have neither the education nor experience for such work. A person is shot to death in the presence of witnesses, and the murderer confesses to the shooting—and yet an autopay must be held to find out what caused death.
Persons are found dead from natural gas products, and all the symptoms show it; a single atom of the blood, examined by an expert with the micro-spectroscope, would prove it in a moment; but the coroner must have an autopsy and an analysis, and then does not know any more than was known in the beginning.

As a physician, I have seen four cases of gas-poisoning this winter, and the symptoms were: Unconsciousness, headache and vomit-ing blood for several hours after being restored. There was no smell of gas in the rooms, but in every case the rooms were without ventilation, and the damper in the bipe had been turned down too much to permit the escape of burned gas, which, as any one familiar with chemistry or physics knows, will permeate cast iron as water will transude through a wall. Leave the damper open at nights and turn the gas down, or better, out.

Physician.

INFECTION IN FRUIT.

[New York Ledger.] Some fatal cases of diphtheria recently attracted the attention of an unusually intelligent physician, who immediately set about searching for the cause. The drainage was perfect. There had been no fault here, as far as could be discovered. The sanitary conditions were all that could be desired. The youngsters had all been in unusually good health, and for a time the research seemed to be likely to meet with no satisfactory results.

At length, by accident, some remark was made about a barrel of apples received not long before from a friend up country. The doctor asked to see the fruit, selected a couple of specimens at random and carried them away for examination. Microscopic investigation revealed the presence of great numbers of specks, that proved to be various species of fungi, among which were clearly defined germs identical in general character with those found in diphtheritic conditions. Unwilling to criticise without full knowledge, the doctor made a trip to full knowledge, the doctor made a trip to the place whence the apples came and in-vestigated the surroundings. There was nothing objectionable there, and then began a systematic overlooking of the apples from various localities.

INFECTED WITH GERMS. It appeared that those kept in cellars at the ordinary temperature were frequently infested with these germs, that they were a species of mold, and not particularly dangerous unless they came in contact with favorable surroundings. A dozen childre n might eat them without harm, while one would contract the disease in a violent form which might prove fatal. A peculiarity of this state of things seems to be that, while the disease germs from the apples caused only an occasional case, as soon as the malady had developed in the human system it acquired greatly increased virulence; and it was thought that these germs, like and it was thought that these germs, like many others, were comparatively harmless, save in exceptional cases, when they developed with frightful rapidity and formed a propagating ground from which the disease was likely to spread through the entire community.

It is a fact well understood by many people that fruit that is handled by scores of persons, carried through all sorts of atmospheres and exposed to no end of disease germs should be thoroughly washed before it is eaten. But it is no unusual thing to see persons eating fruit on the streets or in public places where the air may be charged with the germs of contagious diseases of all ommunity. with the germs of contagious diseases of all sorts. Lodging upon the juicy surface of a partly eaten apple, it is at once taken into the system and meet exactly the conditions favorable for its most rapid development.

It should be an inflexible rule in all households that no fruit be eaten without washing. The practice of devouring it in the streets and public conveyances, while in many instances it seems almost a necesin many instances it seems almost a neces sity, is yet, for the same reason, open to serious objections.

POLITICAL POINTS.

The President may appoint a Supreme Court Justice by and with the advice and consent of the United States Senate. That does not mean that he should consult the Senate before sending to it the nomination. Nor is there anything in the consitution defining one Senator, or the two Senators from any State, as the United States Senate.— [Louisville Courier-Journal (Dem.).

A tax on sugar is primarily and unquestionably a revenue tax. What element of protection there would be in it is too small to excite argument. The Republicans understood this when they took off the tax and substituted therefor a specific bounty to the sugar planters of the South, which was the most objectionable form of protection. To knock off this bounty would be strictly in accord with Democratic ideas.—[Kansas City Star (Ind.). Kansas City Star (Ind.).

The attitude of Mr. Wilson and the ways and means committee toward Mr. Jonnson's proposal to put steel rails on the free list is in exact accordance with the spirit in which the pending bill has been framed. That spirit is one of moderation, caution and a spirit is one of moderation, caution and a jealous care not to inflict injury upon the country's industries. However desirable it may be to destroy the steel rail pool, it is not desirable to destroy the steel rail industry.—[New York World (Dem.).

quotes Senator Hill as saying that $40,000,000 would be produced annually by such a law, and then proceeds to show that probably little more than 1 per cent. of that amount would be paid by the Southern States, some of which have had inheritance tax laws and have repealed them because they yielded nothing. On the other hand, States like New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois would pay many millions, and almost inevitably State reveaues from this source would be cut off.—[New York Tribune (Rep.).

The workers in the laundries of Troy, N. The workers in the laundries of Troy, N. Y., neglect a serious duty they owe themselves and their future by refusing to take lessons from the past. When the McKinley bill imposed a 68 per cent. duty on linen collars and cuffs, an increase of 40 per cent, the combination of manufacturers not only refused to increase wages, as protection guarantees—that is, as the advocates of subsidies insist that it does—but in less than three months after the new tariff inte went into effect they reduced wages 10 per cent. A long strike followed, and the workers were taken back at the old terms. The linen collars and cuffs were sold no cheaper.—[Philadelphia Times (Dem.).

The Czar's Strength.

The Czar's Strength.

New York Herald.

A story which has been told of more than one Russian is revived by a St. Petersburg correspondent. At a little station not far from St. Petersburg the Czar, as the story runs, made a somewhat longer stay than he had originally intended, and feeling hungry he partock of some simple food at the buflet. Meanwhile the little daughter of the mayor presented the Empress with a bouquet, the flowers of which were hastily gathered from private hot-houses in the neighborhood. The stalks being still damp and dir'y the Empress, visibly embarrassed, hesitated for a moment to soil her gloves by taking the bouquet, whereupon the Czar clinehed the matter by seizing one of the heavy pewter dishes on the table and twisting it as if it were paper, making a neat covering for the stalks. The story has at least vraisemblance, as the Czar's muscular strength is undoubtedly abnormal.

The Word "Brouze." [Languages.]

The etymology of the word bronze has proved a stumbling block to most lexicographers. It is left unsolved even in the "New English Dictionary." To the Italian "bronzo, probably from 'bruno,' brown' is as far as the monosyllable has generally been traced. In the Hatzfeld-Darmesteter "Dictionnaire de la Langue Francaise," however, a step beyond "bronzo" is taken—to the burial place of Virgil, Brindisi, the Latin Brundusium; and Professor Skeat, who has been furnished by a friend with substantial evidence upon the point, now has no hesitation in declaring that it is to the name of the old Italian town that we must look for the correct derivation of "bronze."

Aggravated Bad Form. [Judge.]

"Horrid form in that Kansas girl to praise the silverware at Mrs. Rollin's dinner, wasn't it?"
"Yes. Was she much offended?"
"Deeply. Most of it was borrowed from her neighbors."
